Riotous Rebels Drive Women To Kill Selves

MEXICO CITY, July 1.—Forty women, mostly of the better class, have committed suicide in Durango since its occupation last week by the rebels after a long siege, according to a private letter received here yesterday.

The women, said the letter, became desperate because of their treatment by the victorious rebels.

Consular advices say that the rebels who entered Durango conducted themselves like bandits, burning a large part of the business section after looting it, and joining in the wildest excesses. The reports say foreign flags were not respected.

A few American citizens were wounded during the fighting, while one Englishman was killed, according to these reports.

Private advices from other sources say several German women in Durango were offered indignities by adherents.

The Mexican government is preparing troops for the relief of the city, but many days must pass before their arrival there.

Getting Ready at Juarez For Expected Attacks

EL PASO, Tex., July 1.—Rifle pits and trenches were being dug today by federal soldiers at several points on the western outskirts of Juarez, and barbed wire is being stretched as an additional defense against attack by constitutionalists. An outpost of 100 federals has been stationed two miles south of the town. Scouting parties are moving east and west of the border town. General Salazar was in charge of the scouts.

CONFEDERATE CHIEF PAYS A TRIBUTE TO GETTYSBURG'S DEAD

General Bennett H. Young Addresses Veterans of Blue and Gray on Field Where Comrades Fell in '63

55,000 VETERANS NOW CAMP ON BATTLEFIELD

Old-Time Warriors Again Display Bravery That Marked Campaign Days — Cheers Greet Dixie Veterans

(By Associated Press.)

GETTYSBURG, July 1.—Fifteen thousand blue and gray veterans of the war between the states sat in a big hot tent on the Gettysburg battlefield today and joined in the opening ceremonies of the first day of the semi-centennial celebration.

Doctors of the regular army, the Pennsylvania department of health, and the Red Cross, looked with apprehension upon the swelling crowd of old and feeble men that jammed the aisles, climbed over the seats, and tried hard to look comfortable in a temperature that had left 100 behind hours before.

Colonel J. M. Schoonmaker, chairman of the Pennsylvania battle anniversary celebration commission, presided, and the first address was by Governor Tener, of Pennsylvania, who welcomed the men in blue and the gray.

Secretary of War Garrison delivered the oration of the day.

Then came addresses by Judge Alfred B. Beers, of Bridgeport, Conn., commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and General Bennett H. Young, of Kentucky, grand commander of the United Confederate Veterans.

General Bennett H. Young, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, said no man who loves his country "can fail to read in the circumstances surrounding this celebration the stimulating and uplifting power of a people's government." He declared the scenes at Gettysburg today are the completest evidence of the perpetuity of the American republic.

He declared the men of both armies whose deeds of valor made this battlefield forever historic were true in truth as they saw it and that more than eight out of every ten who participated in that struggle "have gone to be with the immortals."

Referring to the tattered battleflags in evidence on every hand, General Young said they were no longer being waved to lead men into the jaws of death, "but to declare and proclaim a peace that in its magnificent power and in its political liberty challenges not only the gaze but the admiration of the civilized world."

He spoke feelingly of the fact that men who fought a half century ago met today as friends, with war's animosities forgotten.

"There are things in the past that are regrettable," he said. "Laws were enacted that challenged the equality of the men of the south, but, tried in the crucible of reason, liberty and patriotism, they issued but in the establishing of state has equal rights, every man has equal privileges. The war has left no badge of inferiority, and the men who wore the blue and followed the flag of the Union ask for and expect nothing that is not the right of the men who wore the gray and followed the stars and bars.

PENSIONS FOR CONFEDERATES.

"It may be that the suggestion latterly put into form to give Confederate soldiers the same privileges in national soldiers' homes as federal soldiers ought lead to the establishing of this right, or that peace, in its demand for the obliteration of all bitterness of the past, may demand that the nation shall pension surviving Confederates.

"I do not even suggest, or in the name of my people, say that it would be needed, but this republic is a great destroyer of the cherished ideals of the past when they stand in the way of completest justice.

"For nearly fifty years the people of the south, without complaint, have contributed millions for the pensions of federal soldiers. A nation's gratitude has been meted out through enormous grants to provide for federal soldiers, their widows and children.

"No murmur has ever come from the men of the Confederacy at this vast outlay, and there are some who predict that the hour may arrive in national life when the few and infirm remaining men who fought under the Confederate standards with admittedly unsurpassed courage, should have in their evening time the comforts and conveniences that their infirmity deserves.

"While the north cherishes the memories of its great leaders, the south," he said, "acclaimed the one right as to their heroes of the Confederacy.

"Robert E. Lee was to us the greatest, noblest and grandest soldier and gentleman the world has ever produced," he said. "Stonewall Jackson, the vigorous and skillful leader who walked with God in prayer and used his divinely given genius for the defense of the rights and homes of his people, is

"NO" BILL IS RETURNED AGAINST A. S. COLYAR

Grand Jury Declines to Indict Colyar for Reply to Attack of Colonel Felder

After considering a bill charging A. Colyar, of Nashville, with libel, the Fulton county grand jury at its session on Tuesday returned to indict the Tennessean, returning a "no bill" in the case. Mr. Colyar has been in the limelight recently as a principal in the sensational dictograph episode, and has been engaged in a heated controversy with Colonel Thomas R. Felder.

The Tennessean was charged specifically with libelling Mr. Felder in a card published over his signature in The Journal of June 8, in which he excoriated the Atlanta lawyer.

The grand jury had the bill drawn of its own initiative, it is said, and considered it Tuesday morning. The only witness called before the grand jury was John Paschall, city editor of The Atlanta Journal.

In answer to questions of the grand jurors, Mr. Paschall stated that the card was furnished for publication by Mr. Colyar. Colyar had been given an opportunity to reply to an attack on his character, which Mr. Felder had embodied in a card addressed to the editor of The Journal and which was published on the same day, the newspaper man told the jury in answer to further questions.

Attached to the bill, which was drawn against Mr. Colyar, was a copy of his card.

The grand jury was in session more than an hour, considering the bill, before its decision not to return an indictment was reached.

ANONYMOUS NOTE TELLS HIXON OF LIQUOR LOBBY

"It Is Here Strong and Plenty," Says Anonymous Writer

Senator J. T. Hixon, of the Thirty-seventh district, chairman of the temperance committee and leader of the prohibition forces in the senate, is in receipt of an anonymous letter in which he is assured that the liquor interests are maintaining a lobby here.

Following is the anonymous letter, which is typewritten:

"Senator Hixon—I can give you full information concerning the liquor lobby and will do so at the proper time.

"It is here, strong and plenty of it, and basing their hopes on the fact that Governor Slaton will veto any prohibition bill. Will he?

"I will see you in person soon. Rest assured I will produce the goods.

"ONE WHO KNOWS."

Several days ago Senator Hixon gave The Journal an interview, in which he stated that it had been brought to his attention that the liquor and beer interests had established a numerous and pernicious lobby here.

"I have some additional information," said Senator Hixon Tuesday morning, "but I find that since the publication in The Journal several days ago the liquor forces are not so emboldened. I desire to repeat what I said then, and that is if the liquor interests desire to lobby they should comply with the law and register."

Negro Nurse Holds Baby As Bait to Tease Lioness

Animal Keeper Boyd, of the Grant Park Zoo, Arrived Just in Time to Avert Tragedy Before Bars of the Zoo Cager

The laughing baby of a well-known resident of the Grant park section, held close to the lioness' cage in the park menagerie, was used Monday afternoon by a negro nurse to tease the animal into springing against the bars.

Luckily the game was stopped by the timely arrival of Animal Keeper Boyd.

In spite of the watchfulness of the men in charge of the Grant park zoo, some person occasionally manages to elude them to tease the animals.

The favorite pastime of a certain type of male person is to stand in front of a lion's cage and poke his hat at the great beast until it gets mad and strikes through the bars with its powerful claws.

Several hats have thus been smashed, the lions suddenly reaching out far enough to take hold of them, and of course a hat in the claws of a lion is as easily crushed as an egg shell in the hands of a man.

The meanest of the lion group is the lioness, and she is cunning as well as mean. She will pretend not to notice the hat, but all the while she is edging closer to the bars. Then suddenly her enormous claw will strike out, and woe to the headgear of her tormenter.

The negro nurse reached the limit of this teasing when she used the baby entrusted to her care to tease the lioness.

Animal Keeper Boyd caught sight of her just in the nick of time. Entering at the far end of the long building, he was horrified to behold the woman thrusting the baby toward the cage. The lioness had an evil gleam in her eyes, and she was edging up to the bars. The baby gleefully laughed and waved its hands.

Boyd rushed up to the nurse, snatched the baby from her and called a policeman and had her placed under arrest. Then, making the nurse tell him the name of the baby's mother, he went to the telephone and called the mother.

It happened that she was the wife of a prominent citizen living on a street near the park. Boyd told her in a few words what had happened. He heard her scream and then hung up the receiver with a jerk. Presently she came down through the park in a fast run, a look of terror on her face. Boyd and the policeman had difficulty in preventing her doing violence to the nurse. She pressed her baby close in her arms and hurried back home, and the nurse was sent to police station.

HOUSE AND SENATE COMMITTEES NAMED

Pres. Anderson and Speaker Burwell Announce Law-Making Machinery of Assembly

All standing committees for the general assembly of 1913-14 were announced Tuesday morning. Soon after the house met at 10 o'clock Speaker W. H. Burwell handed his list of committees to Clerk John T. Boifeuillet, who read them.

After calling the senate to order at 11:30 o'clock President J. Randolph Anderson turned his committee assignments over to Secretary Charles S. Northen, who promptly read them to the senate.

Seldom in the past have the presiding officers been enabled to prepare their committees in so short a time after the beginning of a legislative session, and they were able to do so this year only because they have worked night and day upon them.

It has usually been from a week to ten days after the beginning of a session before the committees were read. This year, however, they were announced on the fifth legislative day. The committees will get down to work at once, as a large number of bills already have been introduced and held for their attention.

SERVIANS JOIN GREEKS AGAINST FOE AT ISTIP

Repeated Breaches of Treaty Cause Greece to Take Offensive—Grave Consequences Predicted

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, July 1.—The Greek foreign minister informed the correspondent of the Frankfort Gazette at Athens that Greece intended to begin war against Bulgaria today without any format declaration.

The foreign minister made this statement:

"After Bulgaria has answered all the conciliatory steps of Greece by repeated breaches of treaty and by crossing the provisional boundary fixed a short time ago, the Greek government feels forced to assume the offensive.

"War will in this way commence without a formal declaration and the Greek government will submit a statement in this sense to the Bulgarian government at Sofia today.

"Greece declines to accept the responsibility for this war, which unquestionably will have grave consequences."

The Greek legation here today received an official dispatch from Athens stating that the Bulgarians had inaugurated a general attack on the Greek and Servian positions in Macedonia along a front of 140 miles.

Greeks and Servians Fight Bulgars at Istip

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, July 1.—Fighting between Greeks and Servians on one side and Bulgarians on the other continued today from Istip to Ehenthera, according to a dispatch from Sofia.

Each government declares its troops have been instructed not to take the offensive unless attacked and each is trying to throw on the other responsibility for the beginning of the fratricidal war.

Except in an isolated case the Bulgarians in Salonikt offered only a feeble resistance to the Greeks and the latter sustained no losses.

Servia Agrees to a Russian Arbitration

(By Associated Press.)

BELGRADE, Servia, July 1.—The Servian parliament today agreed to the acceptance of arbitration between Servia and Bulgaria offered by the emperor of Russia and also to the proposed conference between the Balkan premiers at St. Petersburg.

VIENNA, Austria, July 1.—Austrian newspapers said today that the Russian ministers at Sofia, Belgrade and Athens have been instructed to summon for the last time the Balkan governments to keep the peace and to send their premiers to St. Petersburg for a conference.

DIVER SEARCHES RIVER FOR BODIES OF BOYS

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 1.—The search for possible additional victims of yesterday's accident, when eleven boys were drowned in the Merrimack river as a result of the collapse of a runway leading to the city bath house, was resumed today by a diver, who explored the river bottom, and by boatmen, who dragged the stream. It was believed that no more bodies would be found, as all of the boys reported missing last night had been accounted for this morning.

NO NEGRO FOR OFFICE IN BRUNSWICK CUSTOMS

Secretary McAdoo Revokes Appointment of Negro When Attention Is Called to It

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
WASHINGTON, July 1.—The designation of E. R. Belcher, a negro, as deputy customs collector in charge of the port of Brunswick, was revoked by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo last night, immediately after the secretary had received emphatic protest from several sources against Beecher's appointment. The negro's name had been announced in dispatches.

One protest was directed by the Brunswick board of trade. Another was filed personally by Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia.

Secretary McAdoo thanked the senator for calling the matter to his attention, and at once ordered the revocation of the Belcher appointment.

L. P. Johnson was designated to take charge at Brunswick on July 1, when the customs reorganization has been ordered into effect throughout the whole country.

WILSON LEAVES CAPITAL FOR A "REST CRUISE"

No Salutes Fired as Mayflower Leaves With President and His Physician

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, July 1.—With no more ostentation than would mark the exit of the humblest summer flitter, President Wilson slipped out of Washington today for a three days' "rest cruise" on the yacht Mayflower. For seventy-two hours Mr. Wilson will take a complete vacation from official cares in the salt breezes in lower Chesapeake bay. His only companion is his physician, Dr. Caryl Grayson.

None of the formalities that generally mark the embarking of the president was observed. At Mr. Wilson's request no salute was fired, no whistles blown and the formal welcome aboard by the officers was omitted. Virtually the only evidence that the president of the United States and commander-in-chief of the nation's sea strength was aboard was the president's flag at the mast head.

The president expects to return to the White House Thursday night. He will go to Gettysburg reunion Friday, where he will make a brief address, and then proceed to Cornish, N. H., to spend three days with his family.

FRISCO POSTMASTER HANGS ON TO HIS JOB

Fisk Declines to Resign at Request of Postmaster General Burleson

(By Associated Press.)
SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—Postmaster Arthur G. Fisk, of this city, refused to tender his resignation to Postmaster General Burleson in response to the latter's request that the resignation be forwarded immediately, "to take effect as soon as successor is appointed."

"I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your telegram requesting my resignation," was the postmaster's reply. "I beg to inform you that I was appointed postmaster by President Taft and was confirmed by the United States senate for a definite term of four years. My term of office will expire June 14, 1916. You make no charges against me and can make none with propriety and justice. My office has been conducted to the satisfaction of three presidents and has earned the commendation of six postmaster generals. I see no reason why I should yield to your request. I, therefore, respectfully decline to tender my resignation."

Taft Loses Forty Pounds and Passes Almost Unrecognized

NEW YORK, July 1.—William H. Taft, Mrs. Taft and two of their children, Miss Helen Taft and Charles Taft, arrived here late yesterday from New Haven and two hours later boarded a train for Montreal. At Murray Bay, 90 miles north of Quebec, the former president and family will spend the summer, returning to New Haven early in September. At the Grand Central station, last night three porters almost staggered under a weight of golf sticks.

The former president has lost perceptibly so much weight that he passed almost unrecognized in the throng at the train gates. It is said that he had dropped forty pounds.

Must Go Home to Get on a Spree in Texas by New Law

(By Associated Press.)
DALLAS, Tex., July 1.—While hundreds of saloonists throughout the state yesterday began observance of an act passed at the last session, providing that saloons shall be closed from 9:30 p. m. until 6 o'clock a. m., the act didn't become effective until today. At the same time the stringent regulations governing the shipment of liquor into "dry" territory went on the statute books.

One bill makes it an offense for a man to get drunk at any place except in his own home.

Divorced persons cannot marry within a year is another law now operative.

SIZE OF JAPAN'S DEBT PUTS TABOO ON WAR

TOKIO, July 1.—Answering critics before the Bankers' club last night that Japan was insufficiently redeeming its foreign debt of 1,400,000,000 yen, the minister of finance, Baron Takahashi, today admitted that the size of the indebtedness was a source of some apprehension, but no cause for alarm.

Marquis Matsukata declared that in case of international trouble Japan might be subjected to foreign interference on account of her big debt, to say nothing of the difficulty she would experience in raising war funds abroad.

ROW BREWING IN MACON OVER NEW DEPOT SITE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

GEORGIAN NOW IS HEAD OF U. S. CENSUS BUREAU

W. J. Harris, of Atlanta, Sworn Into Office at Washington Tuesday

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—William J. Harris, of Georgia, was sworn in and commissioned as director of the United States census bureau today at 11 o'clock in the office of Secretary of Commerce Redfield. The oath was administered by Chief Clerk Choate, of the bureau of corporations, in the presence of a score of bureau and division chiefs. Congressman Hardwick was present, and was among the first to congratulate Harris.

Pleasant A. Stovall, of Savannah, who has been appointed and confirmed as minister to Switzerland, is in Washington preparatory to assume his duties as a diplomat. He conferred with Secretary Bryan this morning, and will spend some days in Washington familiarizing himself with the diplomatic relations between the United States and Switzerland.

After taking the oath, Director Harris was in conference with Secretary Redfield and Congressman Hardwick for half an hour, during which time the reorganization of census bureau was discussed in a general way. None had any announcement to make following this conference. It is believed that the new director will make no immediate change in the personnel of the division chief at present, but first will master the details of the intricate work before shaking theplum tree, for which many Democrats are anxiously waiting.

Director Harris drove from the department of commerce to the census bureau with Retiring Director E. Dana Durand. He found his new office profusely decorated with flowers. Most of the morning was given over to a reception at which Mr. Harris met the employes of the bureau.

The law is equally as rigid with the exclusive clubs as with the corner saloon.

VITAL STATISTICS BILL INTRODUCED IN SENATE

House Bill Calls for Bids for W. & A. Lease as Recommended by Gov. Brown

Supported by physicians and health authorities, a vital statistics bill, providing a new department under the direction of the state board of health and headed by an appointive official to be known as state registrar, was introduced in the senate Tuesday by Senator Elkins, of the Fifteenth district, C. H. Elkins, of which provides in detail for a complete record of births and deaths, the cause of death and the statistics of disease, has been advocated for several years by the state and city health experts. Doctors assert that through the working of a thorough vital statistics law the origin of disease can be traced and health conditions be bettered in the state.

The bill carries an appropriation of $2,500 for the state registrar's salary of $2,500 for the state registrar and $1,000 for his clerk.

He is to have offices in the state house and work under the direction of the board of health.

The registrar is to be appointed for four years by the governor and he is in turn to name sub-registrars or local registrars in every city, town and militia district in the state, who are to work under his supervision and collect statistics.

In discussing the bill Tuesday Senator Elkins said:

"The measure is of unusual importance to the state. The bureau of vital statistics such as it proposes has been long advocated by the state health authorities and doctors.

A somewhat similar bill sent to the state during the 1912 session by Dr. C. C. Beauchamp failed to come up for passage during the press of business in the last few days of the session.

WOULD REVISE REGISTRATION.

Senator W. W. Stark, of the Thirty-third district, Tuesday, following the recommendations of Governors Brown and Slaton, introduced two bills providing a revision of the registration law.

One of the measures proposing to change the time of closing the tax rolls from six months before election back to the old system of closing them thirty days before the election, has considerable political significance and doubtless will provoke a fight. The present law, requiring a closing of the tax books six months prior to the election was advocated by Senator Hoke Smith and put on the statute books at his suggestion. The thirty-day law was advocated by Governor Brown.

The second bill provides for permanent registration such as advocated by Governor Slaton in his inaugural address. Members of the legislature seem to be in accord on this phase of the registration question.

COMMITTEES NAMED.

The early session of the senate was taken up by the appointment of committees. President Anderson of the upper house in making his appointments declared that he considered the committees on prisons, finance and appropriations to be the most important.

FOR W. AND A. LEASE.

Following close upon the heels of former Governor Brown's second message to the general assembly dealing exclusively with the proposed lease of the Western and Atlantic railroad, Representative Meadows, of Wayne, Tuesday morning introduced a bill in the house calling for bids by July 27, 1914.

The bill provides that the legislature gives the governor the power to lease the property in its entirety for a term of thirty years at a monthly rental of not less than $50,000, and that all bids must be accompanied by a certified check for $25,000, same to be forfeited to the state should the bid be accepted and the terms of contract not be complied with by the lessee.

Power to open the bids is vested in the governor under the provisions of the bill and the railroad commission who shall have the power either to accept or reject any or all proposals.

GEORGIA "MOVIE" MEN JOIN NATIONAL ORDER

At a meeting of Georgia motion picture men Monday a state branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America was organized under the direction of Alexander A. Wall, a former Atlanta man who is now located in the "movie" business in Birmingham.

The national convention of the league meets July 7 to 12 in New York. A large delegation from this state headed by President John Elvins, will attend the gathering and will make a big effort to get the 1914 convention for Atlanta. The local chamber of commerce will cooperate with the Georgia branch in this effort.

The following officers were elected for the Georgia branch: John Evins, Vaudette, Atlanta, president; E. H. Davis, Electric theater Griffin first vice president; O. A. Farrar, Elite theater, Atlanta, second vice president; U. T. Koch, Augusta, national vice president for Georgia; U. L. Leggett, Palace theater, Newnan, sergeant at arms.

The Georgia branch will have the help of the Atlanta conservation bureau in getting the next national convention. National Vice President Wall met with the bureau Tuesday morning and received its promise to send a representative to the New York convention.

Stricken Dumb

For three days this man has been in a cell at police headquarters without speaking a word. He lost his voice some time between midnight Friday and 3 o'clock Saturday morning. From a letter in his pocket he has been identified as "Jim Lowe." Physicians are puzzled by his case.

STRANGER STRUCK DUMB; CASE PUZZLES PHYSICIANS

"Jim Lowe" Asked Question at Midnight—At 3 A. M. He Was Found Dumb

Sometime between the hour of midnight and 3 o'clock Saturday morning Jim lowe lost his voice.

In cell at police headquarters he sits, throwing his head from side to side, unable to utter a sound. Three physicians watch him, undecided whether his silence is due to a contusion on the side of his head, where a small bump whitens the tanned skin, or to a natural malformation.

He was last known to speak shortly after midnight Friday when he stopped an officer on the street and asked directions to a certain house on Whitehall street. Two hours later another officer encountered him wandering aimlessly. He was arrested on suspicion. At police headquarters his continued silence is puzzling the best physicians of the city.

Jim Lowe, his supposed name, is a white man about thirty years of age. Policeman Parham has identified him as the man who stopped him near Five Points late Friday night and inquired for a number on Whitehall street. The officer says that as accurately as he can remember, the number was 463.

When the officer directed him to the place he cautioned the man not to approach anyone's house at that hour of the night, or he might be taken for a burglar.

It was 3 o'clock Saturday morning when Policeman Williamson arrested the man on Whitehall street. He was strolling aimlessly, seemingly with no destination. Since he was taken to police station the man has ben under the constant watch of City Physician M. C. Martin. Tuesday morning he was taken before the recorder on the charge of disorderly conduct. Throughout the trial he spoke no word nor seemed to hear.

Recorder Broyles recommended that he be sent to the Grady hospital. He was to be taken there some time during the day Tuesday. Two Grady physicians have joined Dr. Martin in an investigation of the case.

They say there is no possibility that Lowe is playing a trick. He cannot speak. The bump on the side of his head, they believe, is the cause. It must have been received some time between midnight Friday and 3 o'clock in the morning. One theory is that Lowe approached someone's house and was struck or shot on the skull. It is possible that he was hit by thugs.

In his coat pocket was found a letter of recommendation from an ex-mayor of Newburn, Ga., saying that one Jim Lowe is a good and faithful worker. There was a pawn ticket in his pocket that showed he had left a suit case at a shop at 62 Decatur street. This ticket gives his name as Jim Pope.

Physicians are greatly interested in the case and expect to note developments soon.

BOLLING JONES WILL NOT DISCUSS THIBADEAU CARD

"I Am a Private Citizen, Not the Postmaster," Says He, Declining Statement

A published report that Bolling H. Jones, who rumor says is to be appointed postmaster of Atlanta, had declined to encourage J. F. Thibadeau, former postoffice official, to re-enter civil service and secure an appointment because the latter had voted for ex-Governor Joseph M. Brown, was met by Mr. Jones with the following statement Tuesday:

"I will say to you exactly what I said to the Constitution; that I am not the postmaster of Atlanta. I have heard that I was to be, but I will not discuss matters affecting the postoffice unless I am appointed to that position. If that time comes, any legitimate question affecting the postal service will be answered by me. I am only a private citizen now and have no right or desire to discuss postoffice matters."

BEAVERS AFTER COPS WHO BELONG TO LOCKER CLUBS

No Member of Force Will Be Permitted to Keep Club Membership, He Says

Declaring that in the future no member of the police force will be permitted to retain a membership in any locker club, Chief of Police Beavers Tuesday morning ordered an investigation of all the membership rolls of such organizations in the city. If he finds that any of his subordinates belong to any club he probably will file charges against the offender before the board of police commissioners.

Sergeant L. S. Dobbs was detailed by the police head Tuesday to make a personal inspection of all clubs. The officer was instructed to obtain the names of all officers who hold a card to organizations which serve liquor in their rooms.

Chief Beavers took the action after he had received information from several different sources that policemen frequently enter club rooms and drink. He is determined to break up the practice.

A resolution passed by the police board nearly a year ago was calculated to break up the practice. It recommended that policemen who are members of clubs sever their connection with these organizations. It did not, however, absolutely prohibit membership in clubs.

For this reason, if Chief Beavers finds any policemen enrolled in a club he will not prefer formal charges against the offender but will simply hand his name to the police board to take action.

Sergeant Dobbs began his tour shortly before noon and will report to the chief the result Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

"It may be that no members of the force are violating the order," said Chief Beavers in commenting on his action. "I do not know positively of a single breech of discipline of this kind, but information has come to me from apparently trustworthy sources that policemen frequently drink in clubs when off duty."

Formal charges against the eight men originally suspended by the chief for their alleged connection with the negro blind tiger at 137 Auburn avenue are being prepared by Secretary Morris. The trials of the men will be held next Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the police board.

All the suspended men are preparing to wage a strenuous fight to retain their positions on the force. Each has employed a lawyer to represent him.

CONFEDERATE CHIEF PAYS A TRIBUTE TO GETTYSBURG'S DEAD

to us the embodiment of all that was great and sublime in a Christian soldier's life. To our minds the world has not produced his equal."

He paid tribute to other Confederate leaders, among them Albert Sydney Johnston, Joseph E. Johnson, Jeb Stuart, John H. Morgan, Joe Wheeler, Nathan Bedford Forrest, Wade Hampton, Hood and Longstreet.

LEE NEXT TO THEIR GOD.

The Confederate soldiers loved General Lee next to their God, he said, but when he surrendered they acquiesced in his judgment, believing the south had failed, not because it was wrong but because the north had more men, better food and better guns, more resources, than the south had. However, he said, it had been determined that the states are one, that the union is indissoluble, a question forever settled by the war.

"The men who fought in the greatest war of the ages, made fiercer by the fact that it was a civil war, now celebrate in peace that battle in no strain or bitterness from the sad and savage desolation, losses and ruin of a struggle that cost 750,000 lives and a treasure as defies the power of figures; a peace, that like heaven's peace, will abide always and ever stand for the preservation and defense of the highest and noblest ideals of a republic.

"We point with immeasurable pride to the past, whether on one side or the other it was a great past, a past that quickens the manliest emotions of brave and chivalrous men."

Army of 55,000 Veterans Camp on Gettysburg Field

(By Associated Press.)

(GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 1.)—Despite the strenuous efforts of the regular army to do impossible things, thousands of veterans spent the night on Gettysburg field with nothing between them and the stars but their clothes and their courage and nothing between them and the hard earth but a little more of the same things.

It wasn't the fault of the regulars, and it wasn't the fault of the veterans. The railroads poured the thousands into Gettysburg the best they could, but train after train that was looked for early came crawling in near midnight and afterwards.

They kept coming from that hour until long after daybreak and shortly after breakfast the rush began again. Major Normoyle, of the quartermaster's department, U. S. A., who has the pulse of the vast camp under his fingers, went to bed not at all, and the little force of army officers went no more than he. They toiled with all the vigor in them to provide shelter in the way of tents, to satisfy the veterans that everything would be all right this morning. They shifted trains, they ran engines, they manipulated switches with the ease of born railroad men. They became information bureaus and pack horses, but still the flood of men in blue and gray came pouring in and the tide rose around them higher and higher.

EXCEEDS WILDEST DREAMS.

Major Normoyle declared today that probably 55,000 veterans will be on the field by night. 5,000 more than ever have been here, far in the wildest dreams of the estimater. Although half that number would fill the camp in comfortable fashion, Major Normoyle said that he would see that every one was taken care of; that nobody went hungry and that blankets to warm and tents to protect were found for all in the rounds the regulars made of the main streets of the camp in the early morning hours they ran into many things that made them swear. While other veterans shivered in the chill before the dawn, they found a Pennsylvanian in his tent snug as a bug in a rug, lying on three blankets with three under him and nine beneath his cot.

The Pennsylvanian was keeping them for friends, he said, but the hard-hearted regulars couldn't see the friends and the Pennsylvanian was separated from all but two of the bailukets in short order.

Many of the men of '62 spent the night around the fires near the cook tents, talking and trying to forget that their bones were not so young as they used to be and that the ground was much harder than it was fifty years ago.

Although the railroads were not good to the veterans, native was thoughtful, and the usual cold breeze that springs up in the early morning brought them relief.

BEGINNING OF BATTLE.

This was the first formal day of the semi-centennial celebration. Although Buford and Wheeler had a skirmish near Gettysburg fifty years ago yesterday, it was on July 1 that the battle began which forced the Union throops out of Gettysburg back toward Cemetery ridge.

Col. J. M. Schoemaker, chairman of the Pennsylvania Gettysburg commission, was the presiding officer for today's meeting in the big tent, and Secretary of War Garrison, Governor Tener, of Pennsylvania; Commander in Chief Alfred B. Beers, of the G. A. R., and Commander in Chief Gen. Bennett H. Young, of the U. C. V., were listed as the principal speakers.

The army surgeons have been surprised at the endurance shown by the veterans and by the fact that no more of them have succumbed to the heat.

"There have been no real prostrations," said Major Collins, of the army medical staff. "Many of the veterans have arrived exhausted. When you consider that only a few score men in nearly 50,000 of them are near the seventy-year mark, have been taken to the hospital and that only four have died, it seems a remarkable record."

The army physicians and Dr. Henry Dixon, of the Pennsylvania state health department, today continued their efforts to have the sale of liquor in the town of Gettysburg stopped.

Colonel Beitler, a member of the state commission, announced today that Governor Tener would not declare martial law in Gettysburg and close the saloons. The governor, he said, had no authority for taking such action and a last appeal will be made to the Gettysburg authorities. The Pennsylvania state police may step in and see that everything possible is done to relieve the situation.

MEDALS FOR BOY SCOUTS.

One of the interesting incidents of the big reunion of the wearers of the blue and of the gray was the presentation yesterday of medals to the boy scouts who are assisting the veterans at the big camp in every way possible. The medals are similar to those worn by the veterans and the guests of the Pennsylvania commission, and were presented by Gen. Alfred B. Beers, commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Praise is coming to the scouts not only from those drawing upon their time and attention, but from camp officials, army officers and others who have seen them at work. Details of the boys meet every incoming train, to point out the way for the veterans and to carry the baggage of the more feeble ones. Others carry messages and run errands for the old soldiers, while ninety-six of the youngsters have been assigned to the Red Cross service. It is a common sight around the emergency hospitals for a little fellow to come staggering in with a heat-stricken veteran leaning heavily on his shoulder.

In his speech presenting the medals to the boys, General Beers highly commended the principle of their organization, and declared that one-half of those who carried muskets during the Civil war were between the ages of 16 and 18, and that the war was fought by those who were under 21."

ARRIVING FROM DIXIE.

Of the thousands who came in today probably half were from Dixie and tents south of Confederate avenue, many of which were unfilled before, bustled with life. General Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, came late in the day and became the guest of the Pennsylvania state commission.

Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet, widow of General Longstreet, and the only woman in the camp, was given a tent last night by Brigadier General Hunter Liggett.

Edgar A. Bigsley, a veteran residing at Wauwatosa, Wis., was found dead in his tent last night. This brings the death list to three.

Because of the serious condition that has developed among the veterans, Colonel Bradley D. S. S. appealed to the local authorities to close all the saloons and prohibit the sale of liquor in the town. In event of the failure of the local authorities to take action, the matter will be placed before the governor. It may be necessary to declare martial law to effect this.

STONEWALL BRIGADE ARRIVES.

A picturesque feature was the arrival of the Stonewall brigade of Virginia veterans, headed by Colonel Chew, who was General Stonewall Jackson's chief aide. They carried their original battle flag. Less than 100 survivors were in line, but their appearance in the streets of Gettysburg aroused unbounded enthusiasm.

KEEFER TAKES OUT BAIL TROVER AGAINST WIFE

A new development in the matrimonial affairs of David H. Keefer, the Atlanta broker, who was released Saturday on a $500 peace bond following a fight with his stepson, came Monday morning, when Keefer entered a suit for bail trover in the superior court against his wife, Mrs. Grace Macy Keefer.

The bail trover, which will force Mrs. Keefer to give up or give bond covering the value of certain of his properties which Keefer alleges that she has in her possession, was fixed at $400. The suit declares that Mrs. Keefer has articles, such as jewelry, shaving mugs, and the like, belonging to Keefer, which he values at this amount.

Deputy Sheriff Chambers went out to Mrs. Keefer's residence on Fourteenth street Monday afternoon to serve the papers.

FIREMAN'S RELEASE NOT POLITICS, SAYS CUMMINGS

Fire Chief Declares P. P. Starnes Was Discharged on Account of Debt

P. P. Starnes, formerly a fireman at No. 4 engine house, has complained to Mayor Woodward that Chief Cummings of the fire department, recently discharged him, supposedly because of his debts, but in reality for political reasons.

Chief Cummings, replying to this charge, said Tuesday that Starnes had embarrassed the department by the number of debts he had incurred, and that he had been discharged solely on this account. There was no politics in it, the chief protested.

The mayor advised Starnes to put his complaint in writing and make it to the board of firemasters, so that an investigation might be made.

Starnes says that he owes only $200. He has a wife and four children, he says, and part of his debt was incurred because of sickness in his family. Other firemen at No. 4 engine house owe more than he does, he says.

Chief Cummings says that the department has been given trouble on account of Starnes' debts, which, the chief says, the fireman incurred recklessly. He added that he had consulted with Starnes' brother and with Councilman Greer in an effort to get Starnes' affairs straightened out, but without success.

The chief says that the department rules against firemen incurring excessive debts are strict, and that he simply enforced them in discharging Starnes.

"There was no politics in it," the chief protested. "I am not in politics."

ASK SECOND PROBE OF KILLING OF CITIZENS

In anticipation of his fight to have the legislature make a second probe into the killing of three citizens by members of the state militia, during the street railway strike in Augusta last September, I. H. P. Beck, of Carroll, has secured a number of affidavits bearing on different phases of the trouble which he will present to the house at the time his resolution comes up for passage.

Modern Improvements

THERE are a score of reasons why. The biggest and most inclusive reason is that Modern Improvements Pay.

They pay in Health. Sanitary living conditions are the right of the people. Without them, there come sickness, crippled efficiency, poverty and worse.

They pay in Money. The town that is alert and wide-awake enough to clean itself up, make itself attractive and wholesome, is the town that holds its own with firm grip and draws new population from elsewhere.

It's exactly as it is with a home. Dirty, unhealthful, insanitary, cheerless home repel the visitor. And in time such homes lose their hold on their inmates.

Is your town clean, efficient, wholesome--a good place to live? Is it the kind of town new industries and new people will naturally be attracted to?

If you lack Correct Sewerage, good Water, Lights, Paving, you ought to get busy.

We Are Municipal Engineers

It's our business to devise sanitary systems and improvements for towns and cities.

We plan, construct, finance and operate. We have done these things for scores of towns, and we want to get in touch with every other town that needs this kind of service.

We will promptly give you all the necessary information. Write us today. It will pay you; we guarantee that our service will produce dividends for your town.

Striped Voiles at 25c Are Not Scarce at Rich's

We're glad to announce this shipment of new striped voiles. Just in this morning; they began to sell as soon as they hit the counter. Very scarce around town; not to be wondered at when you consider their sheer beauty.

On a sheer white voile ground—a fine, uniform mesh—appear dainty polka dots stripes in black and colors. Cool and airy and graceful, 25c.

25c White Pique 15c

The world has gone fashion-mad over pique. We foresaw the trend and stocked heavily. We "plunged" a bit too heavily, hence we have three pretty styles of 25c white pique to sell at 15c. Three size welts, soft velvet finish, 27 inches.

19c for 25c white voile—soft as a grossamer web and almost as sheer, fine uniform mesh, 40 inches.

25c for 39c white crepe—a soft, cool, crinkly crepe so much in demand for summer dresses and waists. (Main Floor, Left.)

New $18 to $25 Lingerie Dresses $11.85

Newness is emphasized, because we would not have you confuse these dresses with time-worn stragglers fit only for a "Sale." These dresses are new—they arrived only last Tuesday.

They come to us at lessened prices solely because makers are winding up their summer season.

Plentiful assortments, too; not a skimpy handful because the price is sealed down.

Many of the prettiest dresses are made of imported hemstitched crepe. Some have all-over embroidered fronts; some are in the one-piece styles; some are in the very new "coat" designs. An embroidered Swiss with crushed silk girdle is particularly charming; a white crepe, tan embroidered, with tan waist, is equally pretty. But there are more than one hundred in all, so description is futile. Not a dress is worth less than $18; many are worth $20 to $25. Choice $11.85.

DEPARTMENT DELAYING MAIL SERVICE CHANGES

Austin Not Named—Feeling in Fourth Division Contest Delays It

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—As a result of unexpected complications and the press of other matters, no action will be taken for a week or ten d.. by the postoffice department in reference to the reorganization of the railway mail service in the fourth division. In this connection it was learned from authoritative sources that W. L. M. Austin, of Atlanta, has not been promoted to a chief clerkship in the division. He continues on his run between Atlanta and Charlotte as clerk in charge.

Some days ago, as reported in these dispatches, an unconfirmed rumor had it that Mr. Austin had been made chief clerk of the fourth division, preliminary to being appointed superintendent of the division, vice George W. Pepper. Subsequently it was stated that Mr. Austin had been made a chief clerk of examinations, and now it appears that both reports were without foundation.

It is not known what is delaying the reorganization of the service in the fourth division and the appointment of a new superintendent, but it is believed that Paymaster Burleson and General Superintendent Stephens have determined to study the situation more carefully as a result of feeling that has crept into the contest between Mr. Austin and Edward P. King, who is now the assistant superintendent and an applicant for promotion.

The friends of Mr. Austin and Mr. King, including senators and congressmen, have been aroused to unusual activity as a result of the contest and the postoffice department is anxious that no mistake be made in deciding the question.

The Atlanta National bank and the Lowry National have each declared 6 per cent on $1,000,000. The Central Bank and Trust corporation has voted 3 per cent on $1,000,000, and a quarterly dividend of 2 1-2 per cent on $1,000,000 will be paid July 5 by the Trust Company of Georgia.

Georgia will pay $139,472 semi-annual interest on its bonds, and the city of Atlanta will pay $119,780 on July coupons.

The Fulton Bag and Cotton mills, the Atlantic Ice and Coal, the Georgia Railway and Power company and some minor issues will pay $389,700 in bond interest for the half year.

National Banks to Pay $100,000 to U. S. Treasury

WASHINGTON, July 1.—National banks today will pay about $100,000 into the United States treasury, as interest for one month on deposits of the federal government. This is the first step in carrying out Secretary McAdoo's recent order charging interest on government deposits at the rate of 2 per cent per annum. The order became effective June 1 and as the interest will be paid on July 1 and January 1 of each year, the first payment will be for only the month of June. The government expects to earn more than a million dollars annually in this in this manner.

Victim's Funeral Silences Hammers On Healey Building

The hammer of the pounding rivets on the Healey building was silenced Monday afternoon, the shouts of the workers stilled, the gaunt framework was stripped of the throng of busy men who have scrambled over its black ribs day after day for weeks past.

The Healey building had claimed its first victim, and in honor of his memory, ironworker, brickmason, every man on the skyscraper, laid down his tools until Wednesday morning.

At 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon they will gather at Harry G. Poole's undertaking establishment to pay a final tribute to their dead comrade, Billy Newburn, who droped to his death from the tenth floor shortly after 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Every employee engaged in building the skyscraper will attend the funeral services, together with the members of the local structural ironworkers' union. A beautiful floral offering has been purchased by the Healey employees by popular subscription.

Following the services, the remains of Newburn will be sent to Chicago, Ill., where his widow lives, for funeral and interment.

GEORGIA FOODS TO MAKE COMMERCE BODY'S FEAST

Home Manufacturers' Dinner of Atlanta Chamber to Be a Georgia Banquet

In full accordance with the Shakespearean adage that proclaims consistency a jewel, the Chamber of Commerce diner Thursday night at Hotel Ansley, at which home-manufactured products will be boosted, will be made up principally of Georgia food products and dainties. The cantaloupe will be the sweetest of the Georgia-grown Rocky Fords. It is no reflection on Atlantians that the lobsters will have to be imported. The filet mignon saute a la Georgia will be Georgia-grown beef, fattened on Georgia corn, furnished by W. H. White, Jr., of the Chamber of Commerce. The chicken salad will be Georgia milk-fed fowl, and so on down the list to the fine Havana cigars and cigarettes, which will both be Atlanta-manufactured.

Looming large in the middle of the menu is the promising item, Atlanta punch. Speculation is being indulged in as to what this locally named product may be, but nobody seems to know. It will be the mystery of the dinner.

TWO LEGISLATORS MAY LOSE SEATS IN HOUSE

Committee Reports Unanimously Against Members From Wheeler and Bleckley

In accordance with the exclusive forecast made in The Journal Saturday, the special committee from the house appointed to inquire into the legality of the seating of Douglas McArthur, of Wheeler, and Leo Browning, of Bleckley, will make an unfavorable report, it was decided at a meeting Monday afternoon.

McArthur and Browning represent two recently created counties. If they are seated in the house, it will bring the body's total membership to 186, while the constitution of the state provides that the house shall consist of not more than 184 members.

The committee would not give the two gentlemen seats solely on account of the constitutional technicality.

The fight to settle the matter of seating the representatives from the two new counties was expected to go to the floor Tuesday morning, but was deferred to Wednesday morning.

Up to Monday the general sentiment of the legislature was in favor of receiving the two members, but members of the committee believe that their unanimous report will change the sentiment and result in the report's adoption, purely on constitutional grounds.

Should the house adopt the report it will then become necessary for the governor to call another election for representatives from the two new counties. At the same time the general assembly will set about amending the constitution so as to obviate illegality in seating the successful candidates in that election.

The question is whether it is possible to call that election in time to insure the new members taking a part in the deliberations of the lower house at this session. Should the matter be left in abeyance until the October primaries, the two seats could not be created until the next session of the assembly.

100 Pennies Given To Yancey Family By Three Children

The Journal has received a letter enclosing one hundred pennies, donated by three little children to the Yancey family. They raised this sum by giving a show to which they charged a small admission.

All of the children are thirteen years of age or under. They are Kathryn McGrath, 364 Luckie street; Hazel Meister, 26 Plum street, and Madge Van Houten, 211 West Pine street. The little people who helped a worthy cause by attending the show were about the same age.

And the show was a good one, too. Many novel features were introduced.

FACTS DO NOT INDICATE INDICTMENT OF CONLEY

Rumor About Negro in Phagan Case Not Confirmed—Grand Jury Is Through

The publication to the effect that the negro sweeper, Jim Conley, probably would be indicted by the Fulton county grand jury for the murder of Mary Phagan, is apparently without any justification.

The grand jury, according to its foreman, Lewis H. Beck, will make its presentments to the court Wednesday morning and in all probability will be discharged then.

It is not likely, therefore, that the jury will consider any further bills. Mr. Beck declined to comment on the publication and referred the reporter to the solicitor.

As Solicitor Dorsey is known to be opposed to an indictment of Conley by this time, there seems to be no basis for the report that the case will be taken up.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey vigorously asserted Tuesday afternoon that no attempt had been made by the grand jury toin dict the negro Conely for the murder of Mary Phagan nor had any suggestion been made by the jurymen in this direction.

He said positively that he had heard of no intention on the part of jurors to go over his head in the Conley matter.

Secret Service Men Trail Secretary's Hat To Senator's Head

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 1.—After the secret service men and capitol attaches had spent some time on the trail of the elusive Tumulty hat, which the president's secretary couldn't find when he started to leave the capitol yesterday, Senator Mark Smith, of Arizona, was discovered on his way home serenely wearing the much-sought headgear. He surrendered it, but only without protestations of his innocence.

SOUTH CAROLINA MILITIA ASKS FOR FEDERAL AID

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Members of the South Carolina delegation in congress, accompanied by Brigadier General Jones of the South Carolina militia, went to the war department today to talk with Secretary Garrison about a renewal of federal aid to the organized militia of their state. he secretary informed his callers that if Governor Blease himself would apply for a continuance of federal support he would consider it.

Because of the defiant attitude of Governor Blease the war department recently announced that no federal assistance either in personnel or equipment would be afforded the militia of South Carolina. Department officials of South Carolina. Department officials declared at the time that Governor Blease not only ignored standards of efficiency in the state militia demanded under the Dick law as a condition of federal aid, but had announced that as commander-in-chief of the state volunteer force he would do what he pleased.

Exchanges on the subject reached a climax when the governor wrote Secretary Garrison that he did not want federal aid. Then the order was issued withdrawing from South Carolina the federal support given militia of all other states and territories. Since that time Governor Blease has given no intimation that he has changed his mind, although the state militia authorities are very much disturbed over the situation.

OFFICERS WILL RESIGN IF NEW LAW IS REPEALED

According to Attorney William S. Coburn, of Atlanta, second lieutenant of Company K, Fifth regiment, Georgia National Guard, a wholesale resignation of militia officers will result if the legislature repeals the military law enacted last year and subjects the troops, when called into service, to the direction and authority of the civil officials.

"Fifteen officers of the Fifth regiment have already drawn up and signed their resignations," said Mr. Coburn, "and they will be handed in the minute the law is repealed, if the legislature takes such action. Enlisted men cannot resign or I doubt not a large number of them would leave the service if the law is revoked.

"The militia would be nothing more than tin soldiers, directed and ordered about by town marshals and other civil authorities. Rioters would lose respect for the troops and their usefulness would be at an end."

Bills to repeal that section of the military law which makes the civil authorities subservient to the troops now are pending in the house.

PLAN TO STRAIGHTEN CURVE NEAR BUCKHEAD

Shelby Smith Hopes to Eliminate Dangerous Point Where Many Accidents Occur

Shelby Smith, chairman of the Fulton county commissioners is working on a plan to straighten the curve in Peachtree road just south of Buckhead. "Dead Man's Curve," where so many fatal automobile accidents have occurred.

Mr. Smith states that Sylvanus Donaldson, owner of a part of the frontage inside of the curve, has agreed to give off a sufficient width to run the road straight, provided the adjoining property owners will do the same.

The county's engineers have gone over the ground in company with Mr. Smith and pronounce the plan entirely feasible, provided all property owners co-operate.

There is a hollow inside of the curve which will have to be filled, but this can be done without difficulty, and the road when finished will have a width of something over 150 feet.

If the plan is carried out, what is now the most dangerous point between Atlanta and Buckhead will be made the widest and safest point.

RECORDER PUTS ANOTHER OVER MAYOR WOODWARD

Pardon Controversy Again Entered by Case of S. E. Hayes

"Fifty dollars without costs or forty-nine days," said the recorder. "I'll put him out of the mayor's reach this time."

It was the trial of S. E. Hayes in police court Monday afternoon, who was arrested three weeks ago, sentenced to thirty days in the stockade, and pardoned by the mayor a few days late. He was arrested again Sunday night and Recorder Broyles gave him a sentence which the mayor cannot touch, thus continuing the pardon controversy which the two officials have waged for many weeks.

Hayes is the son of Mrs. Henie Hayes, proprietor of the Hayes house. He was some months ago he gave his age as 18 years, in the mayor's pardon it was 16. The second time he was arrested the young man said he was 21. He told an officer at the police station Sunday night he was 22.

About a year ago Hayes was arrested on the charge of habitual loafing about a public place and the case was dismissed when he promised to leave town. Six months ago he was arrested on the same charge and fined $25.75 or thirty days. The case was fought through the higher courts and the recorder's sentence sustained.

Three weeks ago Hayes started to serve the thirty days. He had been in the stockade but three of them when he was pardoned by the mayor. Sunday night he was arrested again on the same old charge, and Monday afternoon the recorder shot the bolt which will take away the mayor's pardon power from his case. He will be tried again Tuesday afternoon on another charge, that of being a minor in a pool room.

Value-ful Hosiery

That is the Kind You Can Buy Here

We say it with a bit of pride, with a pardonable pride---you can buy only value-ful hosiery at Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co.'s

Have you ever considered how many people really know hosiery? How many have that expert knowledge necessary to judge the quality and worth of hosiery?

It would not be so difficult, perhaps, if you made a study of it. There are books on hosiery to fill a library, heavy volumes on yarns, others on dyeing and others and others. But how many make it a study, how many could get at the very pith of the matter if they tried?

It is our business to get at the very pith of the matter. That is how we earn your favor and custom.

Knowing hosiery keeps us in a straight and narrow path---it is so very, very easy to get under-priced hosiery were we at all careless about why it is under-priced. It must be right before it can enter our stocks. There can be no doubts, no speculation, no compromising with facts. If we seem to lay particular stress upon this it is because we take the hosiery question very seriously, we look at it from a viewpoint far more critical than you ever could. To sell a customer hosiery that goes wrong, that does not give right service is a vexatious problem. We simply will not take chances.

That is why, when a few months ago we were weighing the merits of a certain brand of silk hosiery, we took every step possible to protect our customers and ourselves. We found it the best we had ever seen, but we went a step further. We secured the opinion of the man we consider the ranking hosiery buyer of America---and when his opinion, going into the "whys", concurred, we stocked "Gold Stripe" Silk Hosiery. It has a patented garter top that is garter proof. The gold stripe acts as a barrier against "runs".

Gold Stripe Silk Hosiery in black, tan and white at $1.00, in black and white at $1.50 and $2.00.

We mention this fact merely as an evidence of the thoroughness with which we do things in the Hosiery Section; how we are everlastingly at it trying to get hosiery that is worth your good money.

And we assure you that in itself is a difficult task. And its accomplishment a fine business-pleasure, for it means customer-satisfaction.

Are you a Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. hosiery customer?

We do not hesitate to say you should be, for your own comfort and economy. You can buy only value-ful hosiery here, the kind that wears satisfactorily and means that at the end of the year your hosiery bill will be the smallest possible.

It might be worse in Washington. There might be no baseball.

A New Facility in the Parcel Post.

The cash-on-delivery system of the parcel post, which goes into effect today, will doubtless prove one of the most useful features of the entire service. Packages of regulation weight will be delivered and collected for by the mail carrier and remittances promptly made to the sender by the postoffice, the cost of this additional service being only ten cents in parcel post stamps.

It is expected in Atlanta, as in other cities, that this new provision will be particularly valuable to truck growers. By means of the C. O. D. method, farmers living on any of the rural delivery routes in this postal territory may send eggs, buttter, vegetables or dressed poultry to town customers and receive their pay by the returning carrier. This is a fertile opportunity for the development of direct and more economic relationships between the producer and the consumer of table commodities; and there is reason to believe that in time it will have an appreciable influence in reducing at certain points the cost of living.

Certainly with this added facility the parcel post will become a more potent factor in upbuilding rural interests. For it will place at the disposal of the farmer and his family a convenience which heretofore has been largely limited to city dwellers. Whatever tends to bridge the gap between town and country life is a great social as well as economic blessing; and that, undoubtedly, is a virtue to which the parcel post with its new service may lay claim.

The C. O. D. system should prove no less valuable to merchants than to farmers; it will enable them to serve more people than ever before, and to serve them more satisfactorily. As for the housekeeper, she after all is the greatest beneficiary of this, as of all other features, of the parcel post.

Board of Trade for College Park.

The citizens of College Park are to be congratulated on their purpose to form a board of trade, or some similar organization, as a means of developing the resources of their interesting and delightful community. It is through such enterprise that many Georgia towns are impressing their personality upon the State as a whole and are growing in wealth and population. Indeed, one of the most notable and cheering tendencies of the time is the movement among our comparatively smaller towns to make themselves ideal home centers. To do this, they must, of course, unbuild their commercial interests in order that they may be profitable as well as attractive to the home seeker; they must have business as well as residential advantages; and to this end, there is no surer or shorter path than an alert, well-encouraged board of trade.

These organizations furnish a rallying point and a base of activity for the community's progressive spirit. Through them, new industries are secured and encouraged, systematic plans for making the town beautiful and more livable are devised and carried into effect and, what is particularly important, such organizations keep the claims of the town continually before the public.

College Park affords excellent material for a movement of this kind. It owns and operates its water and lighting plants. It has two of the best known institutions for higher learning in the State. Its public school facilities are admirable. As a residence center, it has the material environment and the social atmosphere which count for most with families in search of homes. In addition to this, it has the foundations of an energetic business community. Its nearness to Atlanta, it may be added, is a circumstance equally pleasing to the citizens of both places.

The time is ripe for the organization of a chamber of commerce or a board of trade that will develop the civic and commercial interests of College Park. It is to be hoped that the meeting called for this purpose on Thursday night of the current week will bear definite results.

An Example to Georgia.

Tennessee enters today upon a higher and broader course of public education. The compulsory school attendance law, enacted by the present Legislature, becomes effective. Henceforth, all Tennessee children between the ages of eight and fourten must attend school for at least a part of the scholastic year; and in cases where children cannot read and write the maximum age limit is fixed at sixteen years.

Surely, the Legislature of Georgia is not less alert to the interests of its commonwealth than is that of Tennessee, or that of North Carolina, which recently passed a similar measure and also extended the length of the school term. We of this State cannot afford to mark time while our neighbors are pressing forward and upward in the great task of stamping out illiteracy and vouchsafing every child the right to an education.

Let a compulsory school attendance law be enacted for Georgia at this session of the General Assembly.

Not only are the magazines planning Christmas issues, but the colleges are speculating on autumn football.

The Camels Are Coming.

A Texas stockman has conceived the interesting idea of importing to this country herds of camels, which, he believes, will thrive in the semi-arid regions of States like New Mexico and Arizona and become the basis of a new and profitable industry. Indeed, he has convinced business associates of the feasibility of his plan, so that in the near future two hundred camels will be brought from the Orient and turned to browse upon a ranch between Casa Grande and Fort Lowell.

Who knows but that in time these ancient beasts, from whose eyes all the legends of the mystic East look forth, may become as familiar in certain parts of the New World as a cow or a mule? Growing towns may have to pass ordinances against camels running on the streets and persons picturesquely disposed may enjoy to their hearts' content rides heretofore limited to the Midways of the annual fair?

The fact is, as a writer in the Boston Transcript points out, the camel is really a native of America and its importation will amount simply to "the repatriating of an exiled race". Students of geology and zoology have agreed that it was upon this continent in aeons long ago that the camel came into being. "Professor Othniel C. Marsh," we are told, "has minutely described its primitive forms from the eocene strata and Professor Richard S. Lull has depicted its step-by-step development from the protolop (of jack-rabbit size) through the late eocene to the glacial period."

"At the beginning of the latter period," says writer referred to, "the well-developed branch of the camel race fled before the overwhelming ice wave, migrating from what we call the New World to the Old, probably by the neck of land which is supposed to have connected America and Asia, where now we have the Bering Strait. Many camel skeletons were found by the Yale expedition of 1908 in Wyoming and Nebraska, and another has recently been brought to light in the Canadian Yukon territory. A considerable collection of bones of the prehistoric types has been made."

The camel is a jack of all trades (if we may use so flippant an expression in speaking of a creature so solemn) and good at every one. Its use as a means of transport is immemorial. Its hair supplies precious fabrics, its skin furnishes valuable leather, its meat is said to be relished in soups and steaks, once the taste is acquired, and its milk will make rich butter and cheese. With all this, it thrives upon a scantier sustenance than the thriftiest goat would ask. The camel is clearly the sort of animal needed in a land where the cost of living is high.

"Progressive Law-Making."

In writing on the timely subject, "Progressive Law-Making in Many States," William B. Shaw, in the current issue of the Review of Reviews, notes a tendency towards what he terms "legislative reference bureaus." "Legislators," he says, "now have a far sounder basis of knowledge as to what has been done in different States dealing with similar problems than they had in former years. Far more effort is now expended on the inquiry whether a proposed law can be enforced and made effective. Apparently, there is less eagerness than formerly to encumber the statute books with dead-letter enactments."

In a country so broad as the United States there is, of course, a wide diversity of problems among the several commonwealths. Yet, in most matters of vital interest, each State can learn a vast deal from the experience of its sisters; and, as Mr. Shaw declares, the tendency is towards a thorough investigation of such records by law-making bodies. The States are now doing what progressive cities long have done; they are studying the methods, the successes and failures of their neighbors; and a new idea that has proved fruitful in one part of the country is likely soon to be adopted in others.

It is on this principle that we now have the proposal to appoint a legislative commission in Georgia to study the penal systems of other States, to the end that we may profit by their experience in reforming our own penal system—which, everyone seems agreed, may be very greatly improved.

There are, to be sure, many questions which each State must answer out of its own mind, independently and alone; but there are many others upon which "the legislative reference bureau" will throw valuable light.

THE PHILIPPINES

XIX—THE NEW MANILA.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

A new city is being built on the shores of Manila bay where Admiral Dewey's guns shattered centuries of calm on that memorable May day in 1898. A city beautiful is steadily being shaped by the American exiles in that far away land with the same fervor that animate the civic worker in America itself. They take no thought of the fact that what they are doing today will not even benefit their children, when they have finished their tropical task and returned to live again among their own kind. They toil in the blistering sun on Burnham plans covering half a century, and the transformation even today is astonishing. Today Manila is the most modern city in the far east. A generation hence it will be one of the most beautiful in the world.

* * *

When the American first went to Manila there were few evidences of that delightful Latin culture of which the story books delight to prate. Thousands washed their clothes in the streams and otherwise defiled the sources of public drinking water. Swamps dotted the city. Stink holes and cess pools in the densely populated districts of Tondo and San Nicholas offended the noses of the very angels on high. A vile moat, a turgid, putrefying mass of slime from five to twenty feet deep and from twenty to one hundred yards wide, surrounded old Intramuros (walled city), and enjoyed the doubtful honor of causing far more than its share of the thousands of deaths annually from plague, cholera, malaria and dysentery. An apologetic horse street car service ambled wearily up and down the poor, old Escolta, the town's one main street, and finally stopped of inanition. A telephone service attributed by legend to the great Don Quixote wheezed and groaned through the day's alleged work. An electric light system which Thomas A Edison would have envied for itself had he known the half of its shortcomings and outgoings was permitted to flounder through a nightly attempt to keep the citizens from total darkness. There were no docks, no sewers, no sanitation, no pretty homes. The spirit of "manana" had the town drugged and the only active force was death dealing disease.

* * *

Now all is changed. Five steel docks offer ample berth to the biggest steamships that ply the Pacific or traverse the Suez canal. A reinforced steel and concrete million dollar hotel, five stories high, modern in every respect from the garage depot to the roof garden, takes care of the fastidious tourists who once shunned the place. The new Luneta lies along side the famous old Luneta on the filled-in land which has replaced the waste water that used to swash against it and the Malecon drive. On this same filled-in land, one mile long and one-half a mile wide, massive concrete warehouses, garages, the aforementioned new Manila hotel, the Elks Club and the Army and Navy club greet the eye. The Bamboo botanical gardens and other beauty spots feature broad, winding streets.

* * *

Modern telephones, electric light and street cars serve the city. The old moat is a grass grown playground. A very new water and sewer system capable of supplying a city twice its size serves the citizens. Plate glass windows in most of the shops make the old store fronts blush. Modern office buildings here are elbowing the mouldy old Spanish buildings off the business streets. More than a thousand automobiles, motor trucks and motorcycles keep the people on the jump by day and a score of moving picture shows entertain them by night. Substantial bungalows and up-to-date churches testify to the presence of home loving Americans. A death rate lower than many American cities tells the story of health's successful fight. A thriving trade, growing annually by leaps and bounds, hums where manana once sat and nodded.

* * *

Manila is now a city of 200,000 people which handled an export and import trade of over $100,000,000 last year. Its geographical location, backed up by the new dock and warehouse area, will make it the commercial distributing point of the United States in the far east, just as it is now our political base in that part of the world. Fifty hours across the China sea to the north is China and her 400,000,000 of people who soon are going to demand shoes of modern make, sewing machines, scales, clothes, farming implements, more and more of Philippine sugar, construction supplies, machinery for public works, factories etc. To the south five days away lies the Federated Malay states. At he back is India with 300,000,000 restless inhabitants.

* * *

A bay thirty miles wide will cradle America's immense oriental mercantile marine some day. Where ten German, British, Japanese and other foreign ships enter her gates now a hundred will pass in Corregidor in the future. Manila has the only harbor of the name in the far east. Only Yokohama offers dock space, and that is limited to the French mail line and a handful of other ships. At every other port, even mighty Honolkong, passengers and freight are transported ashore in launches and lighters.

* * *

A purely Philippine trade of immense volume is already beginning to pour through Manila, without in the least retarding the growth of Cebu, Iloilo, Albay and Zamboanga. Tropical products equal in volume to the total production of the Hawaiian islands, Cuba and Porto Rico will in the reader's lifetime be shipped out of Manila to the United States and other countries. Last year the United States took tropical products worth $660,000,000, so that Philippine goods are assured of a ready market, and the result will be the development of Manila into one the world's great seaports.

* * *

Manila is governed on the commission plan, the ruling body being the municipal board, under the direction of the governor-general of the islands. There are six members, three appointed by the governor-general, one ex-officio member, being the city engineer, and two elective members who draw a per diem. One of the men appointed by the governor-general is the mayor who has always been a Filipino. The present city government was organized July 31, 1901. The insular government, for various municipal services, pays one-third of the city budget. The system has worked very well, although the immunity from the ballot of the city fathers, that is, the four appointive ones who exercise the executive power, has resulted in may decisions of public policy very distasteful to the cosmopolitan population.

* * *

Good order generally prevails. The police force has 682 men, about half of whoh are Filipinos, whereas eleven years ago there were 941 policemen. In 1911 the municipal court heard 12,792 cases of which 10 per cent involved moral turpitude. The city contains nearly fifteen square miles and is divided into north and south districts by the river Pasig, which is spanned by the historic Bridge of Spain. The Americans have built twenty-eight new bridges and forty-one miles of new streets, and 35,000 yards of paving have been laid. The department of sanitation and transportation every day sprinkles 1,142,400 square yards and cleans about 2,000,00 square yards of street surface. Public parks and grounds have grown from 150 acres to 300 acres today, with work under way on 600 additional acres. The new sewer and water system cost nearly $2,700,000. Due to these improvements the people of Manila are now able to enjoy the cool nights in peace. Gone forever are the times when one had to go to bed at eight o'clock to read under the protection of the mosquito net in order to escape the army of singing, stinging pests. The net is still used for sleeping, excepting perhaps by some of the breeze swept commuters of Santa Mesa Heights.

THE DIARY OF OUR OWN SAMUEL PEPYS.

June 25.—Up, and to my office, and with great content there labouring all the morning. Very warm, too, and I must remember to buy me some more suits of linens against the so-great heat. Mr. Harry Smith's employer tells me he is pleased with him, as I knew he would be. Mr. Meredith Nicholson hath declined to go to Portugal as minister, as I should do in his place. Ha, said one I spoke thus to, I warrant you, Mr. Pepys' you would rejoice to have an embassy any where soever. But I would not, nor would exchange places with any man, and envy none, neither, save for greater skill, ability and knowledge. To the tennis-court, and played with Will Beebe, who beat me, albeit I did play the best I have done this year. All the evening in meditation on the affairs of the world and my own, too, and better pleased with the latter than with the former.

26.—Great news this morning that Mr. Mackay hath sailed away with his children and without his wife, Mistress Katherine, and all the town wrought up over it, according to the prints, yet when I ask this and that one what he thinks of the situation he but laughs and saith nought, so haply there is less interest in such matters than the town-pamphleteers do think. To the court again and played with D. Taylor against Will Beebe and Mistress Jeanette, who plays most marvellous for one that never played until this year, and looks very pretty too. Home then to dinner, and at my scrivening until ten o'clock, when, very weary, to-bed.

In deference to our brightest contrib, we quote a headline from yesterday's "Times"—"McNab Suspended by Wire"—in which the nucleus of a wheeze lurks. We hope to make many a home happy by the publication of this paragraph.

"Nowadays. . . . LINCOLN AND PHILLIPS

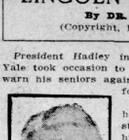
By DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

President Hadley in his baccalaureate address at Yale took occasion to laud the practical man and to warn his seniors against "the illusory visions of reformers."



He praised Lincoln because "he had learned by facing circumstance straightforwardly to hold his faith independent of circumstance," whatever that may mean. "This," he said, "was what gave Lincoln a power that was denied to Seward or Chase or Sumner or Phillips."

There are undoubtedly two kinds of men. One kind do the best they can for righteousness with the material and under the conditions at hand. The other kind aim to better the material and change the conditions.

To the first order belong statesmen, bishops, and most of the existing officers of society. Their type is needed. They are the engineers of progress. They keep the machine of civilization from going into the ditch. Of such, as President Hadley enumerated, were "Bismarck, Cavour, Washington," and "William the Silent." Also Lincoln.

Lincoln was the greatest statesman America ever produced. But while we honor him without reserve for what he was, there is no need to exalt him for what he was not. He was not of the second class above referred to.

To that class belong, for instance, Wendell Phillips, Garrison, and Lovejoy. To that class belonged Luther (in his earlier days) Savonarola, and Ruskin. To that class belonged Jesus.

To my mind those in the second category are not less than those in the first. They saw the vision. They proclaimed it with a hot and fegriess madness. It is they who have set men's hearts afire.

They were not, as the others, the engineers of progress; they made the steam of progress.

To which class should the college-trained man aspire to belong?

Perhaps it is a matter of temperament. We need both classes.

It is refreshing, therefore, to read the other side of the matter, as presented by President Finley in his baccalaureate address at the college of the City of New York, when he said the graduates were to be "pioneers who are to cut their way through the forests of thought, to enlarge the borders of truth."

We need the radical, the reformer, the visionary, and the enthusiast.

The fame of Lincoln there is none to decry. But his life was placed in conspicuous office and his death was most dramatic; and, as he was, his crown should be no brighter than that of Phillips and Garrison, the uncompromising and fearless soldiers of justice and liberty.

Let us have the wise statesman; but let us have also the visionary, for "where there is no vision the people perish."

The Journal's Letter Box

Covington, Ga. June 26th 1913.

Editor The Journal:

I notice in this afternoon's Journal that Senator Foster of this county, has introduced a chaingang, of prison reform bill, which I heartily approve, and I have written Senator Foster, suggesting that he add another clause making it the duty of each circuit judge to visit the convict camp, or camps, in each county in his circuit, as often as he holds a regular term of court in each county of his juricial circuit. This would not interfere with the regular visits of the prison inspectors, and should not conflict with the present arrangements of the prison board, but would keep the court in touch with each convict, whether sentenced by this particular judge or some other. He could note their condition, their conduct, and their personality; he could hear reports first hand from the warden, and the guards, and in many ways familiarize himself with the condition of these unfortunate people and be in a position to recommend paroles, pardons or other methods that might help to uplift these men or women, when found worthy, and in this way again come in close touch with the law breakers, whom it has been his unpleasant duty to impose sentence.

My duty as mayor of Covington compels me to sit in judgment on the violaters of the laws of the city, of necessity, I must often sentence them to hard labor on the streets. In nearly four years' experience I have had to put shackles on three or four men only, rarely ever more than one at a time, but furnish them with provisions, and tobacco, and expect and demand good work, on the public streets. I visit the street gang once, sometimes twice each day. I have found that I can sometimes talk to them and sometimes be made acquainted with conditions that I did not know existed. When I find them good workers, pleasant and bidable. I rarely ever compel them to serve out a full sentence, but take pleasure in letting them off with a reduced sentence. The street superintendent often recommends clemency, in recognition of good conduct and work, and his good word for them has much weight with me. I realize that the conditions with the city convict gang and the county gang are necessarily widely different in many respects, but I do believe that a visit at least twice each year to county chaingang from the trial judge, would stimulate these prisoners to better efforts, both physically and morally, especially if they knew that a good word or report from the warden to the judge would help their cause, and perhaps hasten their release. What do you think of this plan? Very respectfully,

GEO. T. SMITH, Mayor.

THE RAGTIME MUSE

FOURTH OF JULY ADDRESS.

Friends, fellow citizens and—boys;
We celebrate this day,
Free from explosions, fights and noise
In quite a novel way,
We do not maim our fellow man,
Nor cause him needless pain;
To make the day safe is our plan,
And eminently sane.

To shoot the stranger in the leg,
To fire a neighbor's house,
To blow up powder by the keg,
To make a wild carouse
To fill the land with new-made graves,
With cripples and with woe
Once proved that we weren't Britain's slaves,
Or, something, don't you know!

But now that seems a needless waste
Of money and of life,—
And so our present plans are chaste
And free from noise and strife.
In short, new freedom we have won
From evils—catch that brat!
You must not blow your head off, son,
A-celebrating that!

BRILLIANT RECEPTION MARKS ANSLEY OPENING

Beautiful New Hotel Thronged by Thousands at Formal Opening Monday Night

Atlanta's Four Hundred and Atlanta's four thousand thronged through the massive doorway of the new Hotel Ansley Monday night to attend the formal opening and the reception to Governor John M. Slaton and retiring Governor Joseph M. Brown.

The executive staff of the city's latest $1,000,000 hotel had spared no effort to make the occasion one of splendid magnificence. The decorations were beautiful, five orchestras played constantly throughout the evening in every part of the glittering edifice, an elaborate banquet was served, favors distributed, everything done to promote the brilliancy of the affair.

Promptly at 6 o'clock the festivities were begun, and from then on until a late hour of the night the stream of arriving and departing guests was ceaseless. Fully 5,000 people must have crossed the threshold during the course of the evening.

Every room in the hotel was crowded, the mezzanine reception parlors, the spacious banquet hall, the rathskeller, the ball room, the lobby; yet the ingenuity of the management was such that the throng was handled in masterly fashion.

At 7:30 o'clock the guests sat down to an elaborate dinner in the banquet hall. Seated at the governor's table in the center was his party, consisting of Governor and Mrs. John M. Slaton, ex-Governor and Mrs. Joseph M. Brown, General and Mrs. R. K. Evans, Colonel and Mrs. Van Orsdale, Miss Cora Brown, Mr. McWhorter, of Athens, and Colonel and Mrs. Fred Paxon. An elaborate menu had been prepared and nearly 500 had been served in the dining hall before the evening was over.

Each guest was given a pretty favor. The men were presented with fobs and lockets, the women with mirrors, all with a miniature of the hotel embossed on the back.

The pillars of green onyx in the lobby were draped with American flags, oil paintings of historic spots around Atlanta were frescoed on the walls, floral offerings from all parts of the country lined the counters. The rathskeller, known as the College Inn, drew a large part of the crowd. Others were fascinated by the Little Shop, where quaint pieces of bric-a-brac, chinaware, jewelry, laces, and curios will be placed on sale as a part of the hotel equipment.

The whole occasion was a distinct success and at its conclusion there were many who extended a vote of thanks to the executive staff: J. B. Pound, president; J. F. Letton, manager; Charles G. Day, assistant manager, and Frank Reynolds, publicity manager.

TURNER WANTS NEW STYLE TUNGSTEN ELECTRIC LAMPS

City Electrician R. C. Turner will ask council to pass an ordinance prohibiting the installation of the old style carbon incandescent electric lamps.

He says the new style Tungsten, or Mazda, lamps have been reduced 25 per cent in price, so that they can be bought now in large quantities for less than the old style carbon lamps. He says the new style lamps give more light and consume less current.

Discussing his proposed ordinance, Turner says: "The Georgia Railway and Power company now furnishes old style carbon lamps free of charge. If you want the new style lamps you must pay for them. The new lamps give more light and use less current. Therefore, it is natural for the company to prefer that its customers use the old lamp. My ordinance is intended to require the company to provide its customers new lamps, by prohibiting the installation of the old."

BARBECUE WILL BOOST BLUE RIDGE HIGHWAY

Big Gathering at Ellijay on July 4 for Better Roads in North Georgia

The project of an automobile highway from Atlanta, Ga., to Murphy, N. C., running through the beautiful Blue Ridge section of two states, will be launched at a barbecue at Ellijay, in Gilmer county, on July 4.

Charles J. Haden, an Atlanta attorney, will speak as the representative of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; and among the others will be William Webb, ordinary of Cherokee county; W. A. Cox, ordinary of Gilmer county; A. J. S. Hall, ordinary of Fannin county; Sam Tate, of Tate, Ga., and Dr. E. W. Watkins, of Ellijay.

"Better Roads for North Georgia" will be the keynote of all the speeches. The Blue Ridge section will be pointed out as a garden spot for cultivation and a region abounding in scenic wonders, which needs only to be opened up by the building of good roads.

Already the project has progressed to the extent that Cobb county's section of the highway is finished. Cherokee county now has convicts at work on its section. The main work to be done is in Gilmer, Pickens and Fannin counties, and the object of the barbecue is to assemble citizens from these three counties and present the project to them in a manner to arouse their enthusiasm.

State Senator Albert H. Burtz, who represents the district comprising Gilmer, Pickens and Fannin counties, has extended an invitation to the members of the legislature to attend the barbecue.

MEN AND RELIGION BULLETIN, NO. 62

Chaingangs in Georgia

Prevention, not promotion of crime---
Redemption, and not the damnation of men---
The true purpose and intent of punishment.

When you train a boy to be an habitual criminal, you have not prevented crime.

Neither have you redeemed the boy.

And you have harmed your State.

One boy of seventeen carried a weapon concealed.

He was caught.

His first offense.

Four months at hard labor in the chaingang was his sentence; his punishment is moral death—the life of an habitual criminal—unless God intervenes. You have done your best to destroy the boy.

How?

At one side of him today, a man under a sentence of forty years works; on the other is another in the gang for twenty years.

At night the boy is chained to these men.

For our brother's son, splendid teachers and bed-fellows these hardened, finished criminals! Tonight, thank God if your boy is at home.

Four years was the sentence of another boy of nineteen; burglary was the charge against him; his first offense.

Though unwell, the boy was forced to work.

He asked for a tool to pry planks from a bridge. This was refused. Twice, with his bare hands the boy strained at a plank. He failed to move it. He was whipped.

Again he tried; and again the plank did not budge despite the nerve-racked tugging fingers.

A man then kicked the boy from the bridge; the headlong fall paralyzed him. They left him under a tree until evening. In the twilight men carried the boy to camp and put him in his bunk.

There he lay unwashed in his own filth.

Questioned, he did not answer. Suffering had deprived him of the power of speech. For this, his silence, he was again beaten.

When men realized that he could neither move nor speak, they carried the boy from the convict camp to the prison farm.

Today, he can hobble with a stick.

What have you done to the boy?

A judge said to the man before the bar:

"Fifty dollars, or eight months."

A dollar a day, or fifty dollars in fifty days the man could easily have earned, but he had no money.

You could have paid. The man could not.

Therefore, your court took the man from his family and made him work two hundred and forty days for the state.

Usury? Thievery?

What, in God's name, would you call it, when, because a man has not fifty dollars in cash, you put stripes upon him, chain him and take from him by force the equivalent of two hundred and forty dollars?

When became poverty a crime?

You would never name this justice.

Nineteen other states have adopted the system of probation; it enables a court to save; the judge can help the first offender or the poor man to save himself—to make good.

The court imposes conditions; the man must meet them, live under them; if he fails, the man suffers.

Myrick, of Chatham, and Gower, of Crisp, in the House and Tarver in the Senate, have introduced bills providing for probation in Georgia.

Help pass them.

For they mean—

"Correction instead of corruption;" justice instead of injustice; civilization instead of barbarism.

Mercy, but not sentimentality.

God has been merciful to you.

"The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost."

For you, He died. He has given you your chance.

You cannot do less than give other men, women and children a chance.

Prevent crime. Do not promote it.

Redeem men. Do not damn them.

Public officials are your servants; their acts are yours.

COTTON GOSSIP

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 1.—Cotton opened steady with a decline of 3@5 points under scattered covering, which appeared to be for both accounts, which was probably inspired by relatively favorable Liverpool European political and commercial and favorable crop accounts. Active months sold about 7 points net lower during the early trading, but the offerings were not heavy enough to cause any material weakness, and prices later steadied to a point or two of the lowest on covering and a moderate demand from trade sources.

The market was quiet late in the forenoon, steady on scattering trade demand and covering, and prices about net unchanged to 5 points higher.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, July 1.—Cotton futures closed steady at a decline of 1 to 2 points, with new crop sold on the close. Some little scalping developed on continued showery weather in Texas, but the market had a bullish appearance and traffic grass light. At a net 2 to 3 points down on the tone became duller and moderate trading was confined to one section. At the end of the first half hour of business prices were 1 point lower to 1 point higher, compared with the close of yesterday. A forecast of unsettled and showery weather tomorrow continued the bullish sentiment. Around the middle of the morning the market was dull and nominal on the tone. The July weekly weather reports at 11 o'clock were rather than expected, and some scattered, but decidedly bullish in regard to condition in Arkansas and some Texas points, holding followed them but put prices 4 to 5 points over yesterday's final figures. The buying wave did not last long and orders entered the market during the morning shorts than from longs entering the market. Afternoon prices were 1 to 2 points under yesterday's close.

Saving and Investing

There Is a Tide

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

Right now exists an opportunity for the level-headed investor.

He sees all about him a state of business depression. That the prospects are occupying the time of the very best heads are cheap, that another drop of said bonds are ridiculously low in price, that certain stocks, which are legitimately regarded as investments (for a time) who buy and keep for the dividend return, are low in price that the return on money put into them is more than fair.

The combination of circumstances has brought this condition about. Tariff revision has had its effect, the troubles in the railroads over the demand for higher wages and their struggle to get an increase of rates have powerfully depressed the prices of railroad stocks and bonds. The recent receivership thrust upon the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad has not only shaken the confidence of American holders of railroad securities, but has caused a heavy selling of those stocks and bonds owned by investors in Europe.

More people want to sell good securities now than want to buy. It is a state of mind which will likely continue for some time, but a change in the state of mind which is bound to pass. Within a reasonably brief space of time there will be more people with money who want to buy good securities than people who want to sell. The secretary of the treasury will, with his offer to issue half a billion of emergency currency, was one to call a halt on the panicky pessimists. And when currency will turn prices will, as a matter of course, go up.

The level-headed investor is one who knows when good securities are cheap, and buys them at that time. He knows that many of these securities are cheap now. If he will choose wisely and ignore price changes after he has bought, he will get exceptional value for his money at this time.

"The man who is a permanent 'bear' on the United States is going to go broke." To some such words the late J. P. Morgan expressed his confidence in the financial future of this country. It's a good time right now to recall his words.

PREMATURE GRAYNESS CAN BE AVERTED

THE hair turns gray because it has lost vitality, due to sickness, nervous strain, deficient nutrition and sometimes hereditary causes. To pull out the hairs when they begin to turn white is simply to enlarge the cells, coarsen the hair and cause it to whiten more quickly than if left alone.

The best and only satisfactory treatment for premature grayness is a pure, reliable hair restorative, such as Kobinaire Hair Dye. This resorative is prepared in our own laboratory, a scientific formula, and we guarantee it to be noninjurious. It is not to bleach or change the original color, but is to restore faded or gray hair to its natural color and lost vitality. Its tonic effect makes the hair soft, lustrous and beautiful, and keeps it in a healthy condition. Does not stain the scalp and its use cannot be detected.

Don't let gray hair stand in your way either in the social or business world, for thousands of others are using this splendid restorative with best results. We have sold it for over a quarter of a century without even one complaint against it. It is a pure, beneficial restorative and cannot harm you. For light, medium and dark brown and black hair. At druggists and toilet goods departments, 75c; by parcel post, 83c.

Send us the name of your druggist if he cannot supply you, and we will send you FREE samples of Kobinaire Face Powder and Cold Cream of Roses, Jacobs' Pharmacy, Atlanta, Ga.—(Advt.)

Miss Tinsley Harrison to Play at Little Theater

Miss Tinsley Harrison, who made her initial appearance with the Billy Long compagy at the Atlanta theater and who is playing with the same company in Nashville, has accepted a splendid offer which will take her to Philadelphia for the winter season.

The offer came through Frank Reicher, the well known actor and one of the leading factors in dramatic circles of the north, and the theater in which the pretty Atlanta girl will be seen is the Little theater, the company to play repertoire.

From the first Mr. Reicher, under whom she studied, has done much to encourage the young Atlanta girl in her stage ambitions, and the offer is a further evidence of his belief in her future and ability.

Winthrop Ames is manager of the Little theaters, of which there are three, one in Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, each one sustaining a reputation for only the best and highest drama and talent.

Miss Harrison is the youngest daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Z. D. Harrison, and one of the prettiest and most popular members of Atlanta's unmarried set.

One of the Chief Features in This Store Wednesday Will Be a Sale of

Remnants

Of all Kinds of Curtain and Drapery Goods

At Half Price

Which will be the greatest event of this kind we have ever announced.

Quite impossible to tell you on paper all it means to be able to select from such an assortment of desirable fabrics as these---the most popular drapery materials, reduced by active selling, to short lengths at about half price---many of them considerably less than half.

A wonderful assemblage---larger in its scope, more varied in its kinds than any sale of Remnants this department has ever held. You can hardly think of a practical or desirable drapery fabric that is not among them---from the least expensive cretonne or scrim, to exquisite tapestry for upholstering, and each at a saving of half or more.

For instance: One beautiful piece of curtain goods---a very fine Scotch madras, the regular selling price of which was 85c yard, a length of six yards had been marked $5.10, is priced for this sale at $2.00 for the whole piece.

There are over 400 Remnants in lengths varying from One to Twelve yards.

The collection is made up of such goods as Curtain Nets, Scrims, white and colored, plain and fancy; Marquisettes, Voiles, French Taffetas, Reps, Madras, Upholstery fabrics and Burlaps.

These Remnants will be arranged for your inspection, on tables especially arranged on the fifth floor, Rug and Drapery section—each piece plainly marked—the number of yards, the original selling price and the price at which it is to be sold Wednesday.

We invite you to share this event, which is truly an unusual one.

WEDDINGS

Oliver-Ellis Wedding

The wedding of Miss Eloise Oliver and Mr. Brampton Erroll Ellis was a pretty event of Monday evening, the ceremony taking place at 8:30, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. John Oliver, on Peachtree street, Dr. Richard Orme Flynn officiating.

The beautiful home was transformed for the occasion into a scene of flowery like beauty, the walls of the drawing room, where the ceremony took place, were almost concealed beneath a mural decoration of southern smilax.

In one corner was improvised an altar of handsome palms, cathedral lights gleamed amid the dark green of the fronds and at each side were caught great clusters of snowy ascension lilies.

The mantels and cabinets were banked with green foliage from which arose slender crystal vases holding graceful lilies, and at intervals were placed French wicker baskets, holding quantities of gladioli, the rose tints of the silk-shaped blossoms making beautiful contrast to the streamers of soft white tulle which were caught to the tall handles of the baskets.

The Bridal Party.

The stairway down which the bridal party came was hidden under a mass of greenery, and the newel posts were twined with smilax into which were caught at intervals single white lilies.

The bridemaids were a group of lovely girls and made a charming picture in their airy gowns of shadow lace draped over net and carried armfuls of pink roses.

Miss Lula Dean Jones came first and Miss Susie Hallman was followed by Miss Carolyn King.

Mrs. William Rhett was matron of honor and wore a lovely gown of rose pink charmeuse draped with princess lace and carried white roses.

Miss Mary Brown was maid of honor and was a dainty picture in her gown of white lace draped over a foundation of white silk and her bouquet was pink roses showered with lilies of the valley.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white charmeuse satin, the corsage was veiled with rose-point lace, and the graceful angel sleeves were fashioned with the same rare lace which had once ornamented her mother's wedding gown. The tulle veil was caught to the hair with a spray of fragrant orange blossoms, and fell in graceful folds to the edge of the long court train, and her flowers were bride's roses artistically showered with lilies of the valley.

Lieutenant Edward King was best man.

Beautiful Reception.

A large reception followed the ceremony at which were present several hundred guests.

The bride's table was adorned with pale pink Killarney roses, the beautiful tints of the flowers being continued in the minor appointments, and in the pink satin roses filled with rice which rested at each guest's place.

The favors for the bridesmaids were tiny gold wishbones encrusted with sapphires.

A huge white wedding cake ornamented the table, and to each frosted rose was attached a tiny white satin bow to which the favors were attached.

The ring was drawn by the bride, the button by Lieutenant King, and the thimble by Mr. Royston Cabaniss.

Miss Susie Hallman caught the bride's bouquet.

The porch was enclosed and banked with palms and ferns, and punch was served from a flower-wreathed bowl by Miss Agate Ellis and Miss Virginia Lipscomb.

Mrs. Oliver wore an imported gown of flesh colored satin draped with hand-painted chiffon. The bodice was of shadow lace embroidered with a tracery of rhinestone and her corsage bouquet was of orchids and lilies.

Mrs. W. D. Ellis wore black charmeuse draped with chiffon embroidered with jet.

Mrs. W. D. Ellis, Jr., wore pale blue satin with overdrapery of blue chiffon painted in a Dresden design of roses.

Mrs. Prioleau Ellis was costumed in orchid colored charmeuse combined with rare lace.

Mrs. E. L. Bishop wore white lace velling satin, and Mrs. Harry Ellis was gowned in pink satin with overdress of blue embroidered chiffon.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Ellis left for an extended trip through the north.

Dull-Broach

Miss Henrietta Dull and Dr. James Abner Broach were married Monday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Dull, on Currier street, the ceremony being performed by Dr. Charles W. Daniel.

Mrs. John S. Adams, of Dublin, was matron of honor, and Miss Mary Dull acted as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Louise Dull, Miss Janet Little, Miss Nell Ballard and Miss Antoinette Blackburn.

Dr. W. B. Emery was the groom's best man. Masters Thomas Branch and Jack Branch were ribbon-bearers and Miss Janet Branch carried the ring in the center of an old-fashioned bouquet.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a handsome gown of white charmeuse, the trimmings of which were duchess lace. A coronal of valley lilies held the tulle veil to her head, and the same fragrant lilies were showered through her bridal bouquet of roses.

The house was attractively decorated with palms and ferns and white asters, the aster being predominant in all the wedding details.

The maid of honor, who wore white chiffon over satin, carried a bouquet of asters. The matron of honor wore ivory white satin, lace-trimmed, and carried white roses. The bridesmaids were gowned in rose-colored crepe meteor and carried pink Killarney roses.

A reception followed the ceremony. Mrs. Dull wore white lace and Mrs. Broach's gown was of black crepe de chine and lace.

Mrs. B. W. Ballard, Mrs. Samuel Swann, Mrs. J. H. Branch, Mrs. T. B. Branch, Miss Stanley and Miss Janet Stanley assisted Mrs. Dull.

Miss Dorothy Selby presided over the table, where the wedding book was kept and Miss Willie Russell Law and Miss Lizzie Lyons served punch.

During the evening Dr. and Mrs. Broach left for a trip to Canada and the Great Lakes. On their return they will be at the Imperial until their home on Peachtree Heights is completed.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

Suppose we discuss colors a bit? They are always interesting and very important. The woman who doesn't understand what coloring she can wear is the woman who never looks well dressed. No matter what the cut and style of a gown, how cheap or how expensive it is, if the color is wrong and brings out the worse tones in her face, her taste will not be applauded by the onlookers.

In this connection it is good to know that the world of fashion offers almost as many varieties in color as in cut. It is not necessary to wear the brilliant ones merely because red is more popular, for you can use a dash of something strong against white and keep yourself happy.

There are those who tell you that black has given way to purple, pay no heed to the remark, for black is as fashionable as it ever was, although there are many who tired of it and prefer to indulge in a rainbow spree.

If red is not becoming to you, pink may be, and if you can't wear brown you may at least wear yellow. In truth, the color card of this year is a generous one and a woman is not restricted in her choice.

What is fashionable in coloring is a different matter. There are always certain color or shades of color that rise above their fellows. These have been determined on by trial since the first of May and any glimpse at an assemblage of women indoors or in the open has given the onlooker a chance to find out what colors the majority of people like.

VATICAN PURPLE IN FASHION.

The brilliant purple which became known last summer and was taken up here and there during the winter without making much of an impression, is again to the front in Paris at all the open air events, and will probably come into full swing here soon. Some call it Eminence purple, which means much the same as vatican, but by whatever name it goes is of little importance so one gets the right shade in it. It may be too strong for the many, but it can be made tolerable by wearing much white below the face, and the present fashions not only allow this, but approve it.

The deep U-shaped opening in front of the bodice which has taken the place of the V-shaped wedge is filled in with white tulle or net or lace. This makes an expanse of white from neck to belt and if the purple line against the neck at the back and shoulders is not becoming, then a deep turnover collar of white lace should be added.

Nearly all the gowns of the day indulge in these white collars at the back for we have learned that the whiteness of a dark line against the skin even when the material is only silk or satin. Tulle and lace are the only dark fabrics that can touch the skin without spoiling it.

Other New Colors.

Purple has its rival. Raspberry red is one. Hunter's pink is another. Linden green is a third, and nearly all the shades of brown and tan have a wide following.

Among the neutral tones are beige, creme, and tan. Khaki has been introduced but it is as trying to men as to women and it has fallen back to give place to a regulation tan which is exceedingly pretty when offset with black and white.

Do remember that all tan and beige and biscuit color need white and a dark color to give them character. This dark color may be American Beauty red or purple, but black is a good choice; one does not tire of it and there is no question about its dignity.

A DAILY HINT TO WORKING GIRLS

THINGS THAT MATTER.
By Jessie Roberts.

Here is one of the interesting letters that reached me in this week's mail:

"Dear Miss Roberts:—Here is a question I should like you to answer for me. I am employed all day, beginning work at 9 and quitting at 5:30. So I have very little time left for outside living of any kind, and I feel that I ought to make the best use of my off hours either in amusement, society or study. Now I used to be a poular girl in school, and I made a lot of friends, many of whom are within reach of me still. Some have married and have homes of their own; some are at work like myself, and others are independent and do not have to work.

"Most of these girls are still fond of me, and I of them. They do a lot of entertaining, usually simple enough; little dances and teas and suppers, or excursions to amusements parks, and they want me with them. If I don't come they get huffy and say I don't care for them any longer. And if I go to see some one of them the others hear of it and think I am discriminating against them.

"I don't mean to do any such thing, but I have only a certain amount of time, and I simply cannot spend it flying around among my friends. Then it means more clothes than I can afford. I feel that the best thing for me to do is cut out the social thing entirely, since it seems to be either that or else doing nothing else. I hate to, because I am fond of the girls. But if I am to do my work properly I must get enough sleep to keep in good health. And I seem to need a perfectly quiet day in the country now and then, without any one I have to talk or listen to. It is a relief after the hustle of the whole week. I don't think I'm unsocial, but I find I don't care for parties as I used to, and that I'm not strong enough to run about from one thing to another. Am I horribly selfish? I don't want to be, and I don't want to lose my friends, but I do think they might understand if they tried. Yours sincerely. ROSE F. F."

Rose is quite right, and it is her friends not she, who are selfish. A girl who is working at her living must choose her recreations so as to get the greatest return in health and pleasure. She must choose the things that matter to her, not what other people think should matter. If she doesn't do this Rose will break down and it is not likely that her friends will be ready to support her. On the contrary, they will probably find fault because she hasn't taken better care of herself.

The Evening Story

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

UPLIFTING THE FAMILY

Fanny Fuller, after her father, was the oldest of the Fuller household. Sometimes she felt that she was older even than he. Strangers frequently mistook her for his wife instead of his daughter. And it was no wonder. At thirty-four Fanny had acquired that indescribable appearance of maturity which inclined one to believe that she might be anywhere from forty to fifty-five.

Her good cooking, management, economy, and judgment had much to do with her father's jaunty light heartedness. Life for him held no care or task bigger than filling his pipe or cutting the pages of a new magazine. He read and smoked incessantly. He liked to think that he was gathering material for a book which he meant to write some time. It was to be a wonderful book, that should bring him fame and fortune. Thereby his children would receive their proper social status and Fanny was to be relieved of all care and responsibility.

Fanny had no dream of her own. She had not, since her mother's death, had time for any. Fanny was exactly what her mother had been—a colorless woman, who led a colorless life of devotion to others. She was housekeeper, seamstress, cook, laundress, lawyer, nurse, mentor—all in one.

The girls made a rush to look over her shoulder.

There were six younger than herself. Two of the boys were married and living on the same street. They had not married particularly well—as well, indeed, as Mr. Fuller thought they ought—but then their wives were young and would in all probability improve as they grew older. After the boys came the four girls—Gladys, Ione, Lillian and Hazel. Gladys was twenty-four, Hazel eighteen, Ione and Lillian between the two. Where Fanny was colorless they were gold and pink and brown. They pursued one definite occupation—that of being lovely. Grouped together on the veranda of an afternoon, they persuaded observers into forgetting that the paint was off, the shingles loose, and the chimneys decrepit. They were much sought after as an adornment by aggressive society dames, and they had admirers. But they were all looking for the great match which should put them all where they belonged. It was no secret that the four Fullers, as they were called, felt above the ordinary salary drawing young man of the town. Like their father, they had their ideal, and they clung to it vigorously.

Fanny, of course, was not meant to be married. She was a born spinster and had no idea that life would ever be more or better than it then was. Hers was a present day existence, so to speak. She didn't look forward, because she knew from her past that the future could hold nothing. She did her duty and kept her faith; what hope there was for her lay in the ultimate prospects of her younger sisters.

Then one fine, fair spring morning while Mr. Fuller was buying his favorite magazine at the news stand a stranger caught a glimpse of him, turned for a better look and spoke. "How do you do, Mr. Fuller?" he said. "Perhaps you'll know who I am from my looks. I've an idea that I'm exactly what my father was about the time he and you were close friends."

Mr. Fuller took off his eyeglasses, squinted and smiled. "By George, you are!" he exclaimed. "Amos French right over." They shook hands heartily. "Your name Amos?"

"No, my name is David. Glad you know me, Mr. Fuller."

"I'd known you anywhere. You're more like your father than I thought you'd be when you were a little shaver. What you doing in town, David?"

"Waiting for a train." David consulted his watch. "They tell me I've got three hours and better. There's been a smashup on the branch."

"Well, well," said Mr. Fuller, genially. "Come right up to the house with me and meet my girls. I've got four—no, five. I came near forgetting Fanny. But then she doesn't consider herself a girl any longer, I suppose."

The four Fullers were distributed picturesquely upon the ruinous veranda. David created a diversion, though a meager one. He wasn't particularly young or good looking or well dressed, but he proved to be bright and entertaining, and soon had them all laughing. Indeed, the gayety was so general that nobody thought to tell Fanny that there would be a guest at luncheon. Consequently when she came to call them she found a strange man to be fed and treated hospitably. Mr. Fuller got up a sudden attack of penitence.

"My stars, Fanny, I forgot. David this is my other daughter. Mr. French, Fanny, you've heard me speak of his father."

Fanny shook hands with Mr. French. She was pale from a long morning in the kitchen, but her wits did not desert her. She merely murmured a request for a moment's delay, and rushed back to the dining room, squeezed up the chairs and laid another plate. When presently the group entered all was in order.

Fanny presided at the table and she did it gracefully from long experience. The table was dainty, the food excellent, and David French ate with an appetite. Moreover, he praised everything and incidentally found out that Fanny had prepared all the dishes. It was she, therefore, that he thanked most heartily for his entertainment upon leaving.

"There's a fine man," said Mr. Fuller, when he returned from seeing David to his train. "Maybe he'd do for one of you girls." He looked inquiringly at his four younger daughters.

Ione flung up her nose. "A farmer!" she said. "Can't you imagine it? Ploughing—milking—digging potatoes. We've got lots of farmers around here, father."

"They're not David Frenches," Mr. Fuller said. "David's all right. I had an idea that his father made money somewhere, but maybe he lost it."

"If he did, David didn't find it," laughed Gladys. "You could see your face in the back of his coat."

Fanny heard without comment. She thought her sisters were foolishly particular. Surely, any woman should be proud to marry a man like David even though he were a poor farmer.

It was not long before David was back again. This time he "happened" into town and ran up in the evening to call on the Fullers. Three of the girls were at a dance. Hazel was ailing and was staying at home with Fanny and her father. Hazel was very glad to see David. She was perfectly sweet to him.

"It's Hazel," thought Fanny. "She's rather young for him, but that does not matter if he loves her."

The third time David came he found Gladys stranded at home. That time when he went away Fanny was sure that he was smitten with Gladys.

The fourth time he came walking home with Ione. The fifth time he seemed charmed with Lillian.

"He means business," Mr. Fuller do you think he's after?"

"I don't know," Fanny considered. "Sometimes I think it's one and sometimes another. He'll be pretty apt to get the one he decides on. He's got a way with him that's—that's irresistible."

"David's all right," averred Mr. Fuller.

One afternoon the girls were all at a picnic, and Fanny was alone. She came downstairs after changing her dress to find David comfortably waiting on one of the veranda chairs. As she appeared in the open doorway he sprang up, his face one glow of gladness. "How do you do, Miss Fanny?" he cried. "You see I'm back again. I knocked three times and then I sat down to wait. I knew you'd be at home."

"Why, how?" Fanny stammered, conscious that he was holding her hand very close.

"Because you always are." He smiled. "And today you are alone. I'm in luck."

"I don't understand," Fanny gasped. He grew grave and gentle at once. "Sit down and I'll try to make you, though I'm a poor 'explainer' generally. Fanny, this is the fifth time I've been here to see, not your sisters, but you," he said.

And then Fanny understood.

He was gone when the girls came home, tired and late, but he had had a long confidential talk with Mr. Fuller—a talk over which Mr. Fuller was still scratching his gleaming gray head. Fanny was out of sight. And Mr. Fuller, who had promised to make it easy for Fanny, told them.

"Married! Fanny! To a farmer!" cried Gladys, while Ione burst into tears.

"But he's no ordinary farmer," explained Mr. Fuller. "Look at that picture and see if you think he is."

He handed Gladys a photograph. The girls made a rush to look over her shoulder. It was a picture of a modern farm, fashioned on the most expensive plan. There was a wind mill, a garage, a lofty house, and fields like velvet, where beautiful cattle grazed.

"David's a Cornell degree man and a scientific farmer," said Mr. Fuller. "He's making money. And his father didn't lose any that he had after all. He's rich, but best of all he loves Fanny."

He turned away and blew his nose hard, while the four girls stared at the picture of Fanny's future home with feelings that they could not yet analyze.

Little Stories For Bedtime

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Granny Fox is sly and wise
And seldom taken by surprise.
But wisdom wrongly put to use
Can never find a good excuse.
It ceases then to wisdom be
But foolishness, as you shall see.

When Granny Fox had gone to Prickly Porky the Porcupine with an untrue story about how Old Man Coyote had boasted how he would dine on porcupine the first time he met Prickly Porky, and had then gone to Old Man Coyote with an untrue story about how Prickly Porky had boasted that he would drive Old Man Coyote out of the Green Forest, she had thought herself very smart and clever. She knew that both would become very angry, and that they would be sure to fight the very first time they met. And she was sure that if they did fight Old Man Coyote would get hurt, for she suspected that he had never met Prickly Porky, and so knew nothing about his terrible little spears. You see, what she wanted was to have Old Man Coyote driven away from the Green Forest and the Green Meadows, for she is afraid of him, and she was also afraid that he would spoil the hunting for herself and Reddy Fox.

Now, with all her smartness and all her cleverness, Old Granny Fox made one great mistake. Yes, sir, Old Granny Fox made one great mistake. You see she had become so used to being thought the smartest and cleverest of all the little people who live on the Green Meadows and around the Smiling Pool and in the Green Forest that she had come to believe that there couldn't be anybody anywhere so smart and clever as she. That was because she didn't know Old Man Coyote. And now as she and Reddy Fox watched from their hiding place the meeting between the wolf and Prickly Porky, she felt a sudden sharp sting in her side. Old Man Coyote had proved himself too smart for Prickly Porky. She ground her teeth as she heard him laughing fit to kill himself, as he kept out of Prickly Porky's reach, and she ground them still more as she heard him say:

"You will boast that you will drive me out of the Green Forest, will you, Mr. Porcupine? The time to brag will be when you have done it."

Prickly Porky stopped short in the middle of one of his clumsy rushes.

"Boaster and bragger yourself!" he grunted. You don't seem to be dining on porcupine the first time we've met. Why don't you? Why don't you make your own boast good?"

Old Man Coyote stopped laughing and pricked up his ears.

"What's that?" he demandd. "What's that? Somebody has been filling your ears with something that is very likely a lie, Mr. Porcupine."

"No more than they have yours, Mr. Coyote," replied Prickly Porky, letting his thousand little spears drop part way back into his coat. "But old Granny Fox told me."

"Ha! So it was Granny Fox!" interrupted Old Man Coyote. "So it was Old Granny Fox. Well, it was the same old mischief maker who told me that ——" He stopped and suddenly looked very hard at the very place where Granny and Reddy were hiding. Then he made a long jump in that direction. Granny and Reddy didn't wait for him. They started for home so fast that they looked like nothing but two little red streaks disappearing among the trees.

"Ha, ha, ha! Ho, ho, ho! Hee, hee, hee! Ha, ho, hee, ho!" laughed Old Man Coyote and all the little meadow and forest people who were looking on laughed with him. Then he turned to Prickly Porky. "I guess you and I are going to be friends," said he.

"I guess we are," replied Prickly Porky, and all of his little spears dropped back into his coat.

Nothing Succeeds Like Success

Mr. J. E. Greene says the secret of his success is in good health, and the secret of his good health is in Nuxcara. He, like every big hearted successful man, delights in telling the world about Nuxcara, the only cure known for indigestion, dyspepsia and catarrh.

J. E. GREENE.

Atlanta, Ga., June 6, 1913.

Dr. Kelly, Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sir:

Some months ago I had what I thought was heart trouble, my heart would skip for an hour or more, and often every third beat. This was especially noticeable after eating. I consulted several physicians but got no permanent relief. I chanced to pick up one of Dr. Kelly's books on "Nuxcara" and soon found I had been treating the wrong complaint. I bought a bottle of Nuxcara and got some better, and after taking about half dozen bottles I was entirely relieved of all heart troubles, as well as indigestion. I have not had a return of this since and I consider Nuxcara one of the greatest achievements in medicine for the troubles it is recommended to cure.

Yours very truly,
J. E. GREENE.

New York Giants Take National League Lead From Philly Club

CRACKERS NOT PLAYING THEIR VERY BEST BALL

Neither the Outfield or Catching Staff Are Turning Out the Best Class of Ball—Not Believed Any Player Is Intentionally "Laying Down," Yet Some in the Bunch Are Not Showing the Class They Are Capable of—Changes Are Coming Shortly

The Atlanta Baseball club is not putting up the article of ball the players as individuals are capable of. This statement is not made to convey the impression that the players are "laying down," for it is not believed such is the case, but yet some of the brightest are not performing their work as they could if they only tried a bit harder.

There is nobody who better realizes that the club is not putting up its top game than the directors of the club, and they have taken it upon themselves to go out and add a few new men. Just now no one knows what the changes will be, but changes are to be made, and that quickly, or before the team is entirely out of the running.

There is no denying that on the Atlanta club are some of the best natural ball players that ever made up a Class A outfit, and yet the club falls short of winning consistently. And you know it does little good to praise the prowess of the players composing the home club when they fail to go out and win ball games. Nr fan cares a rap just how well o badly this or that player is doing so long as the games are being returned on the won side of the percentage table and the team is within a respectable distance from the top of the ladder.

Ever since the club began to win and then toss away games the whole cry of despair has been directed at the pitching staff. Sometimes this was justifiable and then again it was misplacing the knock. Often the pitchers have gone out and pitched a jam-up game until some one of his backers played a drive poorly and put him in the hole; all of which goes a mighty long way towards taking all the heart from any pitcher. You know there is no hurler who can go out and win ball games single-handed. Eight players are supposed to be in there backing him up all the time, and when they fall down they are just as much responsible for the game as is the pitcher if he fails to deliver.

OUTFIELDING BAD.

The outfield proposition is one of the biggest puzzles on the club. In Harry Welchonce, Tommy Long and Harry Bailey the team has three hard hitters, players who in the past have fielded in phenomenal style, who have run bases with the best of them, and yet not one of the trio is now starring other than with the willow.

The main trouble with the outfield is that they do not try quite hard enough. They are all willing workers, and Long and Welchonce are keeping the score where it now stands by their terrific clouting, and yet they can be of more service to the club if they will just pick up in their fielding. With Bailey, he is working hard, but just cannot hit a stride that is in keeping with the caliber of work needed in left field.

All three of the outfielders are good on fly balls, but when they are hit on the drive when it's a ball on the ground it is a certainty that any one of the bunch will pick it up cleanly, and when they get their hands on it the throw to the infield is just as uncertain. All around the circle the fans have been dumfounded at the poor throwing of the crack Atlanta outfield. Bailey is afraid to use his arm. Long holds the ball a bit too long after getting his hand on it, while Welchonce does fairly well. But none of the bunch gets off with the crack of the bat and runs down hits as they should do. All three are speedy and could cut down many hits if they would only get a better start and keep going all the time.

CATCHERS WEAK.

Probably the weakest and most uncertain spot on the club all season has been the catching department. Little has been said regarding the mediocre work at this end of the line, yet the poor showing of more than one pitcher can be traced to this one position. No pitcher, no matter how good, can be expected to turn out his best work when his catcher is not properly backing him up.

The best example of the difference in the work of a pitcher when he is being properly coached is shown by the work of Coveleskie. Last year the Pole was no wizard, while right now he seems unbeatable, and the big change is directly traceable to Gabby Street, the great catcher. He knows baseball and how to coach a hurler, and is getting the very best out of the Hurling Hun.

Atlanta had one real good catcher—Pat Graham—but he was cut adrift, and since then not one of the bunch has shown any real class. Joe Dunn is just about as hard a worker as any man who ever wore a mask, but he just isn't there. Take the case of Chapman. This boy may develop into a real class catcher, but right now he is young and has not had the experience necessary to properly handle promising young hurlers. He is a good man to keep around, but shoula be for the second string.

Canadian Challenger Feared

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 1.—Ralph R. Britton, challenger for the International cup for sailing canoes, arrived from Canada yesterday, bringing with him three canoes that he will use in quest of the International championship. The American canoeists here believe that Britton is the most dangerous challenger that has ever come after the prize, and they are not at all sanguine that they will be able to successfully defend the cup.

STARS OF ONE DAY

Smokey Joe Wood was driven from the hill Monday in the eleventh inning, when the Senators got to his delivery for two runs.

Manager Jennings used pinch hitters as early as the seventh inning yesterday, calling on one again in the ninth, but could not overcome the lead of the White Sox.

Nap Rucker's waterloo came in the fourth inning yesterday when the Doves reached his delivery for six runs.

Fred Eyers, an ex-Brown university star, made his debut in the big league Monday when he went in for the Pirates to endeavor to stop the fast flying Cubs. He pitched a fairly good ball considering the fact that the Cubs had their hitting clothes on.

McGraw used his best talent in boosting himself into first place on one day before his suspension. Tesreau, Wiltse and Matty were in turn called upon to stop the Phillies.

All of the scoring in the Lookout-Gull game was done after the regulation game was over. The first nine innings were scoreless nothings, when both teams opened up, scoring two in the tenth. Not content with this the Lookouts put three across in the eleventh.

STICK NOT KEPT BUSY

During the past series with Montgomery the Crackers were outhit by Montgomery, .290 to .266. The hitting of the Billies counting for one more run in the whole series than that of the Crackers.

In fielding, however, the Crackers led their opponents.

ALEXANDER J. SCHAUER,
For whom McGraw paid $10,000.

SCHAUER, KID FROM BUSHES; $10,000 BEAUTY TO M'GRAW

In baseball two months and sold to the New York Nationals for $10,000 (f. o. b.).

This, to date is the baseball romance of Alexander J. Schauer, the one-hit pitcher of the Superior Northern league club. The price paid for Schauer is the highest ever paid for a Class C player.

Just why Schauer is nicked "Rube" is unknown, unless it is because of the price. Marquard brought $11,000, and surely he was no hick when he went to Gotham.

McGraw bought Alec upon the recommendation of his trusty scout (dime novel stuff), and he just beat the other fellows to it by a step. Schauer is to be delivered August 15, to be taught high school baseball manners by Wilbert Robinson, developer of bushers.

The Giant-elect is just twenty-one. He weighs 187 and is big, rawboned right-hander, just the sort McGraw delights in getting hold of before they have been spoiled, to develop according to his ideas.

Like all high-priced youngsters, Schauer, it is said, has never tasted wine, looked at women or listened to the riffle of cards. However, he has been noted one paragraph back. He is young.

The parents of Alec hoped he would be a minister in the German Lutheran church, but he wanted to be an accountry, so they compromised, and he went to Wayverly, Ia., to grow into a professor of some sort.

The idea of teaching the young idea didn't work into Alec's constitution, so he followed his natural bent, and last fall graduated from a business college, with a sheepskin which alleged he was some accountant.

While looking the world in the face demanding a chance to prove the sheepskin knew its business, Alec discovered he could pitch. So he pitched eight straight winning games for the Garrison (N. D.) independent team.

Doings like this circulate, and Fred Curtis, manager of the Superior club, heard of Schauer and signed him. Since joining Superior, Alec has been the talk of the baseball world. His one-hit games have curled up the bushes in the Northern league, and early in the season scouts camped upon his trail. McGraw's man was lucky enough to talk right to Curtis, and so secured the phenomenal youngster.

Why Schauer's Worth $10,000 To the Giants

1911—Pitched for school team and played on corner lots.

1912—Pitched eight winning games for Garrison independents.

1913, April—Joined Superior. On first trip beat Winona with one hit. At Superior beat Winnipeg with one hit. Repeated at Grand Forks, a ninth-inning scratch with two out, preventing a no-hit game.

BIG SHAKEUP PROMISED IN THE ATLANTA TEAM

Two New Pitchers and a Good, Reliable Catcher Are Badly Needed, and Board of Directors Has Taken It Upon Themselves to Go Out and Get the Right Men—Another Week and It May Be Too Late—Plan Is to Get Players Right Away

There are changes to be made in the Atlanta ball club and that quickly. The board of directors of the local outfit want a winner and a winner they will have if money will get the players capable of taking a bunting.

It is not often that the three directors of the Atlanta team take a hand in the operating end of the club, but when they do it means much, and that is just what they are now doing. Already Messrs. F. E. Callaway, C. T. Nunnally and A. J. Ryan have held several rather secret meetings around the baseball office, and when they go to putting their heads together and wiring first one big league connection and then another you can just put it down that there are to be several additions to the Cracker club.

Every follower of the club will admit that there ahe changes needed and that quickly. A firstclass catcher and probably two real dependable twirlers are the main need right now and if they can be landed they will join the club at Ponce de Leon park on Thursday or Friday. It is hard to get good players right at this season of the year, but money will do most any little service of this kind, and the local owners have the money and the directors are willing to spend it in an effort to land a good club.

Already several strings are out for a couple of hurlers and a firstclass catcher and they may be pulled in at any time. Good prices are being offered and if the deals are not blocked one or two of the bunch surely must go through and give Atlanta additional strength in spots it is most needed.

The report that Paul Musser had been turned back to the Washington club is in error. Paul is yet with the club and will be retained a bit. While it is entirely likely he will be shipped back to Griffith, his lack of control being to big a handicap, he is yet with the club and will remain until additional strength is added to the hurling corps.

Driving Club Tennis Play

Play will be resumed between the Grant-Thornton and the Smith-Mansfield teams on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, on the courts of the Piedmont Driving club for the Georgia state honors. This match was postponed to order to allow the participants to attend the annual tournament which was held in New Orleans last week.

When the match was called one set had been played, resulting in a victory for Thornton and Grant by the score of 6-4. The second set stood seven all, and it will be at this point that the play will be resumed. So far the two teams are neck and neck in the race for the championship.

All Amateurs Should Enter

The entry list for the Atlanta amateur field and track meet to be held on Fourth of July closes Wednesday, and all contestants must be registered with Joe Bess by Wednesday afternoon.

There is already a full list of entries in the following events:

One hundred-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880 yard, hammer throw, shot put, running broad jump, and running high jump.

Each event will be awarded to the winner, three to the man coming second, and one to the man coming third in each of these events, and the team with the most points will be awarded a trophy by the Georgia Railway and Power company.

ATLANTA PLAYERS LEAD IN AUGUSTA TOURNEY

E. V. Carter and Carl Ramspeck Go Through Two Rounds in One Day

AUGUSTA, Ga., July 1.—The South Atlantic tennis tournament being played at the Country club of Augusta got well under way Monday afternoon the first day of play. The first round is completed and several matches in the second started. The Atlanta entries in the tournament are making a fine showing and the final honors are almost certain to be won by Capital city players. Six out of the eight men entered from Atlanta won their matches Monday afternoon. Ed Carter has worked up to the second round by winning two matches in easy style, defeating H. Wall, 6-1, 6-1 in the first round, and Ed White, 6-1, 6-2 in the second round. These matches were rather easy pickings for Carter and there seems to be no one to stop him from going to the finals. He is playing at top form, his net playing featuring the matches.

Carl Ramspeck is also in the second round, winning from R. H. Arrington by default and from L. Brinson, 6-1, 6-2.

J. K. Orr defeated C. H. Farris 6-0, 6-0; Frank Reynolds won from A. Purdy 6-3, 5-7, 6-2; Lloyd Parkks won his match from C. D. Roseman 6-2, 7-5, and Hardy Hall and T. M. Wilson won matches by default. Wilson won in the second round to J. B. Hester 6-1, 6-2; Wm. Matthews lost in the first round to Nurnberger 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Next to Ed Carter, Carl Ramspeck has the best chance in the singles. He is in a different frame from Carter and will make a strong bid for a final place.

In the doubles the Atlantians seem to have the call also. Orr and Ramspeck, who were winners last year, are back and playing in good form. Ed Carter is paired with Walton Griffith and the team is exceptionally strong. The most seribus opposers are the Irving brothers, collegiate stars; Gary and Garrett, the Augusta stars, and the Waring brothers, also fairly well known in college tennis circles. These three teams are going strong and promise to furnish lively competition.

J. W. Irwine and Wingate, the former from Clemson, and the latter from the University of South Carolina, are two college stars that are regarded as strong contenders in the singles. Both have been playing in tournaments lately and are in good shape to put up some winning tenis.

HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

(By Associated Press.)

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 1.—With a series of three games scheduled to be played the locals and the Nashville team play the first contest today. The probable batteries will be for Nashville, Fleharty and Gibson; for Memphis, Newton and Seabough.

Weather clear and hot.

NEW ORLEANS, July 1.—Foxen and Mayer will be the battery for Birmingham in the first game of the series with Brenner or McIntyre will be the New Orleans pitcher; with Adams receiving. The prospect was for a hot, clear afternoon.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 1.—Chattanooga and Montgomery will begin a three days' battle, this afternoon for second place in the league standing. The visitors arrived here this morning from Mobile and it was indicated that Grimes would pitch and Street catch today. Manager Dobbs early in the day announced Manning and Gibbons as his battery.

The weather continues cloudy and sultry.

Price Winner Over Dobbers

Last Game Taken From Montgomery—Billies Threatened in the Ninth

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 1.—The pitching of Gil Price, and the all around work of Catcher Alperman were the secrets of Atlanta's victory over Montgomery on Monday afternoon. Price was hit safely only five times during the afternoon, all of which were single shots, while Alperman did almost as much work with the stick as the whole Montgomery club, getting three hits out of four trials. Whitey also *accepted ten chances without a mis*cue.

The Billies never threatened Atlanta until the ninth, when they filled the sacks, but were retired with only two runs to their credit. Three of Montgomery's five hits came in this inning. But Welchonce's running catch just behind second base killed their rally.

Atlanta scored one in each of the first three innings. In the first Welchonce and Alperman beat out infield rollers, Bailey was picked by one of Case's fast ones, and Smith beat out a high bouncer to pitcher, scoring Welchonce.

In the second Long hit one that Kutina muffed, stole second and scored on Welchonce's safe hit.

In the third Bailey fanned and went to first when Gribbons dropped the third strike, going to second when he threw wild to first. Agler drove him across the plate with a timely bingle.

A walk given to Agler, a three-sack drive by Chapman and a single by Price gave the Crackers two more in the sixth.

Until the ninth inning Montgomery was utterly unable to deliver safeties at the right time.

Plan Golf Tourney At Montgomery Course

(By Associated Press.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 1.—Members of the Montgomery Country club have made plans for an interesting golf contest the 4th of July. Teams will be selected who will have Dr. Olin Kirkland and C. A. Petrey as captains. This losing team will be hosts to the winners at a dinner at the club the evening of the 4th.

Much interest in the matches has been shown because of the fact that Dr. Kirkland and Mr. Petrey won honors in the recent tournament of the Southern Golf association and are among the best players in Montgomery.

ATLANTA TO PLAY GULLS

Atlanta closes her road trip on Tuesday and Wednesday with the Gulls at Monroe park. After which they return home in time for a game on Thursday with the Pels and two games on July the 4th. The present road trip has, so far, resulted in an even break for the Crackers. They won one and lost one to New Orleans, lost two out of three to Montgomery and won two out of three from Memphis. This being the case it is up to the Crackers to take two from the Gulls in order to get away with a majority of games played on the trip.

The final game of the Gull series was called off in order to allow the Crackers to get home in time for the morning game with the Pelicans on July 4. The Pelicans, who also have an off day on Thursday, will journey to this city to play off one of the postponed games on Thursday, thus adding a game to Atlanta's home schedule.

The Gulls should not prove as big a stumbling block this time as they did when they took four from the Crackers on their last visit. The Crackers are going better, and the Gulls are about due to slip a slight bit.

Smith will use Dent and Chapman, the battery that started the first Montgomery game, while for Mobile Berger and Schmidt will work.

CHANGES IN TWO RACES

The New York Giants eased into the first place in the National league Monday, one day ahead of time. McGraw stated that he would be in his accustomed berth by the first of July, and on June 30 his percentage climbed above that of the Phillies.

It took ten innings of exciting baseball to turn the trick, the game seesawing all the way. Both teams hit hard, both managers used three pitchers in the endeavor to stop the opposing batsmen. Snodgrass, Burns and Herzog scored the winning run, Snod*grass doing the running and Burns and* Hertzog the hitting.

The Southern League pennant race changed slightly Monday when Chattanooga nosed Montgomery out from second place. There may be further changes before the season is over as all of the first division clubs are playing among themselves. Atlanta meeting Mobile, and Montgomery engaging Chattanooga.

The race in the first division is neck and neck, and any of the four clubs have a fighting chance. One of the bugs by the middle of the month. Chattanooga's string of victories has brought the leaders within striking distance only 71 points between Atlanta in fourth place and Mobile in first.

Yacht Owners Plan Defender

NEW YORK, July 1.—A report is published here as current in yachting circles that ex-Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, of the New York Yacht club, will head the syndicate to build a yacht for the defense of the American cup next year from Sir Thomas Lipton's efforts to lift it with his Shamrock IV. In addition to ex-Commodore Vanderbilt, the reports carry the names of August Belmont, Henry Walters, of Baltimore; G. M. Pynchen, Harry Lippett and W. Butler Duncan, all yacht owning members of the club, as associates. It is understood that in addition to the syndicate, if one is formed, one or more individuals will build boats and a series of trial races probably will be held to determine the defender.

The cup committee has held several meetings lately to discuss details of the race in 1914, but no official news has been observed by the club officials as to what action was taken.

M'NEIL IS AFTER RECORD MADE AT MOTORDROME TRACK

The record of 38 4-5 seconds made on the local motordrome track on Saturday evening will likely stand just about three more days, going by the boards at the big meet Friday night. Jack McNeil, the fearless Scotch star, is out to eclipse the time made by his side partner, and you know when this Scotchman gets going there is nothing that will stop him.

Ever since the Saturday night meet, at which Graves established the record, McNeil has been planning to clip off a few seconds. Already he has en route to the local track a couple of new J. A. P. machines and when they get here old father record can take to the woods. But in case they don't turn up in time for Saturday's meet, you can depend upon good time from McNeil, for his present machine when geared up properly can go some.

Already McNeil has made a $100 wager with Jack Prince that he can better the time made by Graves and Prince has taken him on. The track manager is willing to lose a hundred to see McNeil hang up a record for the four-lap track. Eddie Hasha now holds the world's record for a four-lap track. It is 33 2-5 seconds, which is just a wee bit better than the mark made here by Graves. And if McNeil breaks one by more than a pot to get them both.

A protest was lodged against McNeil's machine by some of the riders who claimed it oversize and Monday it was taken down and thoroughly examined and found to be regulation in every respect. With his machine passed up by the referee, McNeil is now busily engaged gearing it up properly.

There will be three big events and probably a special match race at the track on the evening of July 4. Big doings are promised and the races are loose.

Glasses For Boston Star

Harry Hooper, the Red Sox right fielder, is probably the only man in the major league today who regularly wears glasses off the field. It is by following the advice of a specialist and adopting spectacles when off the diamond that Hooper has improved in batting average 50 points and probably saved himself the fate of many outfielders when the sun field has sent to the minors.

Since he has been with Boston Hooper has always played the sun field. Last year he noticed that his hitting fell off and consulted a specialist. The expert told him that the glare of the sun in his eyes was weakening them and advised him to take off all possible strain by wearing glasses when not on the field. Hooper did not like the idea, as he feared the spectacles would weaken his sight, but he was assured that they would strengthen, not weaken his sight. He followed the advice, and as a result has had to stand a lot of kidding from the other players. But his batting has improved.

The wearing of glasses is almost unheard of among ball players. Some minor leaguers and many college players wear them, but the big leagues have been free from them. But the chances are that many outfielders who went back to the minors when their hitting fell off would still be in the big show if they had shown the originality and ecurage of Hooper.

SOME DAY—
(Re-entered as per friendly request.)

I'm going home some day—
If I can only find the pathway back;
For I have come too far, too far away,
A wanderer on a strange and alien track;
I saw the world ahead and only meant
To go a little way beyond—and then
To seek the old-time highway of content—
And live back home among my clan again.

I'm going home some day—
But every track I face is strange and new;
God grant I have not wholly lost my way,
But that in seeking all the long years through
The mist shall lift, and I shall find once more
The path that leads me to the dreams of youth—
The lanes of light—the life I knew before
I left the old-time ways of faith and truth.

"I'm going home some day"—
So moves the dream of all the roving world;
Th' seekers of far lands who've lost their way—
God's countless aliens by the current whirled
From out the harbor, and by tempest tossed
To unknown lands where they must ever roam—
But this is all that makes life worth the cost—
This endless dream—"Some day I'm going home."

"Seaton was slammed in the slats."

Verse 2 being: "Alexander was slammed in the slats."

Mandarin John J. McGraw may fear the Cubs intensely, but no one else seems to of late.

AFTER E. W. W. AGAIN.

It's easy enough to be pleasant
When a breeze is stirring the air;
But the cove worth while is the one that can smile
When the pillow is scorching his hair.

They say that H. Wagner isn't as good as he used to be. Here's one bloke at least to whom they can't add the old ejaculation, "In fact, he never was." You know this one, of course.

When the Dodgers tore off that double-header from the Phillies, Brooklyn fans immediately started another rabid discussion as to the best location for planting the pennant pole. Rather than provoke a riot, Bill Dahlen has about decided to finish no better than second.

THE MACKIAN SPLASH.

Just as the Athletics were reported cracking when the Red Sox beat them two games running the following happened: In the next four games they faced Ray Collins, Walter Johnson, George Mullin and Bob Croome, they faced Ray Collins, Walter Johnson, George Mullin and Bob Groome, they faced Ray Collins, Walter Johnson, George Mullin and Bob Groome, to achieve this result they only piled up a paltry matter of some 58 hits. If this is going back, won't someone kindly blow us to a slump?, We yearn to be on the verge of going back—over the Mackian pathway.

THE CASE OF BIRMINGHAM.

Ban Johnson announces that Joe Birmingham is not fit to manage a ball club in the American league. Maybe not, and maybe otherwise. But it strikes us that Birmingham's managerial fitness is up to Charlie Somers, the owner of the Cleveland club.

Mr. Somers thinks that Birmingham IS fit to manage an American league club, and so do several others.

Ban had Stallings chased from New York and handed Owner O'Farrell Harry Wolverton instead. After chasing Birmingham he may award the Naps C. Victor Faust as Joe's successor.

The Pirates are as far back of the Giants now as they were a year ago. And with a better club they finished the season ten games behind New York. As George Moreland says, the dope that they were to make a runaway race of this campaign was undoubtedly "greatly exaggerated." Not to say a bit warped and possibly stretched.

In Walter Maranville, Stallings has a shortstop who can cover more ground running than Ping Bodie can cover sitting down. If this isn't the ultimate boost, we know of no greater praise to attach.

"IN THE GAME FOR MONEY" FRANKLY ADMITS ANDERSON

(By Bud Anderson.)

MEDFORD, Ore., July 1.—I'm not stuck on the boxing game. I may as well be frank and tell you truthfully that I'm in it for the money. I'm not fighting for the joy of the game, although I like to box.

Nature gave me strength and stamina to fight, and I am going to use that gift to put me on a comfortable financial basis. Then I'll quit the game.

I'm not going to talk to you about boxing. I'm going to tell you about my ranch.

To be a successful farmer is my ultimate dream. I'd rather do farm work than fight.

Ever since my first fight I have been saving my money toward establishing a good paying farm. The first $5 I earned by boxing was in a four-round contest in Portland.

I was happy as a lark when I got that five. I put it away and that after, with the money I got in my following fights, started me on the road toward farmerville. I purchased a ranch near my home in Vancouver.

My ranch will be the prettiest in Washington when I get it improved, as I want it. It has a spring and brook on it, and some of the prettiest grove scenery in the northwest. It consists of about seventeen acres, but I will increase its size after a few more fights.

Farm work is one of the best methods of training I know of. I have four horses and three cows. When I want to limber up I curry them. The movements from side to side, up and down the animal's sides and over its back are great for the muscles—of the man—not the horse.

Milking is another good training stunt. It improves the grip and limbers the wrists. Driving horses is also good for the grip. It strengthens the back and arms.

Pitching hay, ploughing, picking fruit and all such work is great for the body. Hoeing, shoveling, raking, stump-pulling and chopping wood and all those stunts will put any fellow into fighting trim.

I would rather train for a fight by just working on my farm, but my manager, Dick Donald, insists that I do some work in the training gym. However, most of my preparatory conditioning consists of doing just the commonest of farm duties. While training for the Brown and Mandot fights I painted buggies, curried horses, dug gardens and did all such work.

I am going to improve my farm as much as possible. When I win the championship, which I feel sure I will, I intend to stay in the ring only a short while, and then hike for my ranch for good. After that you'll hear nothing of Bud Anderson, fighter, but only of Bud Anderson, farmer.

SENSATION OF THE MINORS IS SOUGHT BY CLEVELAND

LARRY CHAPPELLE.

Sensation of the American association, Larry Chappelle, Milwaukee outfielder, is sought by the Cleveland American league club and overtures have been made by Manager Birmingham for the speedy, hard-hitting Brewer.

Birmingham wants Chappelle immediately. The Naps have the pennant in sight and Scrappy Joe" is making every effort to add to the batting, fielding and base running strength of his club while the team has a chance to down the Athletics.

Chappelle is really a baseball wonder—at least in fast minor league company. He is hitting about .342 just now, is a great natural fielder and a splendid base runner. He would prove invaluable to Cleveland if he showed the same ability in the major league that he has with Milwaukee.

Milwaukee has a splendid chance to win the American association flag this year, and Chappelle, being the star, it will be a tempting offer that takes him away from the club.

Cleveland has offered a fancy price in cash and some players for Chappelle an dmay land him. A line on Chappelle is given by his work against the Toledo team in a recent game. This is what he did:

First Inning—Double play, Chappelle to Hughes.

Second—Retired entire side.

Fourth—Two put-outs.

Seventh—Robbed Burns of triple, holding runner on third.

Eighth—Sensational catch of Gardner's long drive.

Ninth Wonderful catch of Brookie's foul; retired side with a shoe-string catch of Burns' drive.

At bat four times, two hits.

JOURNEY TO THE DIAMOND

THE MANAGER.

The manager is the effervescent individual who bubbles over with optimism for a few sweet weeks in the spring and then falls into a pessimistic slump like his ball club.

The manager can swear in all the modern tongues and several of the dead ones. He is a past master of bush league English. He has over developed ears and a skeptical mind due to continuously listening to the alibis of his help, who excel in explaining how they changed to do the right thing at the wrong time.

There are two types of managers, the bench manager and the playing manager. The difference between the two is that one sits on the bench, and watches his hired men run the ivory works while the other plays in the game and takes an active part in the running.

The manager is the gristle-head who never extracts the pitcher at the right time. The bugs in the stand always know when the mutt out there hitting the bats of the foe should be swung to the derrick, but seldom does the manager trouble until too late.

The manager is supposed to know when to send in a pinch hitter, but any of the children of the bleachers will tell you that he uses absolutely no judgment in jerking the weak sister hitter and sending up some fellow to strike out in his place.

From the viewpoint of the player the manager is the flint-hearted monarch who clamps the ban on the crap game and makes other outrageous rulings in restraint of the side line trade of certain members of the ball club.

Some managers come and go like those of Cincinnati, while others stick around forever, like Connie Mack and John McGraw.

Some managers have winners thrust upon them, while others have to do their own architectural and structural work. These latter grow gray hair faster.

Managers are merely Masks for dictatorial club owners. The manager gives out the dope to the scribes and makes a great bluff at running the team. Between bluffs he is closeted with the club owner, who is passing out instructions in regard to the day's battery and where the outfielders shall play for certain well known batters.

The team with this brand of managerial bossism usually finishes in the rut. The manager may be capable enough, but he's constantly on the ragged edge of his nervous system. Even when he's sitting on the bench he is expecting the club owner to send down orders in regard to pitching to a certain hitter.

Philly Hurler Whips McGraw

Angered by Taunts of the New York Leader, Brennan Pummels Manager

PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—Manager John McGraw, of the New York National league baseball club, was knocked down by two blows on the jaw delivered by Pitcher Brennan, of the Philadelphia National league club, after Monday's contest between the two teams.

The New York manager was walking across the field talking with another Philadelphia player. Nearly all the spectators had left the grounds. Suddenly Brennan sprang toward him and swung his right hand to McGraw's jaw, landing above his chin, and followed it quickly with a second blow from his left hand which landed below the ear. McGraw dropped before he could see who had hit him. Later he declared that he must have been kicked, but other players who had quickly pulled Brennan away declare that only two blows were struck. McGraw soon recovered.

Brennan declares he was exasperated beyond the limit of endurance by taunts directed during the game by the New York manager at members of the local team.

SEND CANOE INTO CANAL

NEW YORK, July 1.—The first coast-to-coast trip ever made in a canoe is the ambition of John H. Sullivan, Jr., who left New York in an open canoe date this afternoon with San Francisco as his destination. He expects to be the first man to paddle a canoe through the Panama canal.

Oddly, Sullivan started north up the Hudson river for his southern trip. He will go through the Erie canal to Buffalo, thence to Toledo, Ohio, and down the southern shore of Lake Erie, through the Maumee river and canals to the Ohio river at Cincinnati, and down the Mississippi river to New Orleans. He has no fears of the open water he will then encounter and is confident of reaching the Panama canal by January, 1914. He will then encounter the most hazardous leg of the trip, facing hundreds of miles of open ocean to California.

Sullivan expects to make at least 25 miles a day. He has lived with the Siwash Indians who are the fisher people of Vancouver and often made ten day trips on the open ocean. He says the 16-foot canoe which he is using is one in which he saved thirty lives in the recent flood at Peru, Ind. Also he used it in a trip from Chicago to New Orleans.

Promoters After Match

NEW ORLEANS, July 1.—An effort will be made to match the winner of the twenty-round bout between Jack Britton and Charlie White, at the McDonoghville arena, July 4, with the winner of the Rivers-Ritchie fight, to be held at Los Angeles on the same date, it was announced by promoters in charge of the local match today. Both Britton and White are lightweight title aspirants.

AMERICAN PITCHERS BETTER THAN THE NATIONAL STARS
—FRANK CHANCE.

For years a National league player and manager, Chance, who is thoroughly qualified to talk on the subject, was asked point blank if the brand of baseball in the American league was faster than the baseball played in the parent organization.

"I cannot see much difference," stated Chance. "I believe that the American league pitchers are better than those in the National league, but outside of that there is little to choose."

Asked why it was that this season the games played in the National league consumed less time than those in the American, Chance replied: "Up to this year it was just the opposite—American league games were hustled through quicker than the games played in the National. I cannot explain it. I reckon it's just one of those things."

In discussing the umpires of the American league, Manager Chance said: "You may put me on record as saying that of all the umpires I ever saw in my life Silk O'Loughlin is positively the worst.

"I don't go around crying about the umpires as a rule, but O'Loughlin is the limit. Some of the decisions he has given against our club have been the limit. I believe that Silk must be going blind."—Exchange.

S. V. D. Wins Double Bill

S. V. D. took both ends of a double bill on Saturday afternoon.

It would not be fair to "pick out" the stars of the two teams to try to "pick out" the stars of the games. There was not so much hitting on the part of the S. V. D. team, but the hitting came at the needed time.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

Some Things That Will Help Young Growing Chicks and Laying Hens

THOUSANDS of promising youngsters are at an age now where they need the very best of care, and any extra attention that may be given them now will mean much to their future, either in the showroom or their usefulness as breeders another season. Their every comfort should be looked after. They should have shade and fresh water, and, above all things, should be supplied with an abundance of green food of any kind, and especially after it has been cut and prepared fo rthem. A party made a suggestion some days past which is certainly true. He stated that as a war of corn, a head of lettuce or a head of cabbage could be handed to a person and naturall they not eat it, but when it is properly prepared they would eat and enjoy it; and the same thing applies to chickens. When grass is cut up fine, cabbage, lettuce or potatoes are chopped up and prepared in a tempting manner for young chicks, it is surprising how much of this green, succulent food they will consume, and it plays an important part in their body development and also the color of the feathers that they take on during the last molt.

A chicken's future usefulness depends almost altogether on the way it has been raised, and these little details are certainly worth looking after and giving attention to, if you want your birds to bring revenue and do well for you. I recently saw two large flocks of chickens raised by the same party. One had grown almost twice as fast as the other. This same party said that she had such bad luck with her chickens she had decided to abandon them, but gave them another trial this year, and outside of the same food was given every day this year; and in a flock of 264 not a single feed, care and attention given last year, a sufficient quantity of green food was fed to realize the actual return that we should have to make a profit from our poultry, this is one thing that must be looked after. It plays just as important a part in egg production and in the health of old chickens as it does in young chickens. I know of one party that has 3,000 pure White Leghorn hens and has raised about 5,000 young ones this year. He has one-half acre of alfalfa. It is irrigated with overhead irrigation, and every day since the 1st of April this year his fowls have had an abundance of this green food. He has a small gasoline engine and a small chopping machine and the chickens have a treat every day consuming several large cotton basketfuls of this gren food. It not only gives him in return an abundance of eggs and a wonderful growth of strong, robust constitution in his chickens, but it saves a large amount of other and more expensive foods that have to be bought and supplied when this is not grown at home. Green food of different kinds, and alfalfa esepecially, will do as much to help the poultrymen of the south show a profit on the right side of the ledger in the keeping of poultry as anything I know of.

One of the largest duck raisers in the United States has several times told me that he could not make the proft out of his ducks if it were not for an abundance of green shredded clover and alfalfa that he fed daily with other feeds to them. This he had raised himself, and it is absolutely essential that anyone in keeping a large flock of ducks should have these materials growing so that they can be had daily and cut down the feed bill, in addition to increasing revenue and egg production and extra growth throughout the year. Green sprouted oats have been a wonderful discovery and have helped thousands to get results from their chickens that were not doing so without these oats. But when something so much cheaper and even better can be grown by yourself has been discovered to take the place of oats, which have to be bought and are expensive, it is far better for you to provide this green at home, and it is so much easier to do this than it is to prepare the oats, to say nothing of the big difference in cost. Therefore, if you wish to get profits out of poultry, do not neglect planting and having something growing at all times for them, and prepare it in a tempting way so they will enjoy it.

Yours very truly,

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION

I want to thank you for the excellent article you wrote in Sunday's Journal on stock raising. I wish that every man in Southern Georgia could read that piece and then make an effort to put same in practice. That is one of our greatest needs in this section of the state is the interest in the live stock industry, and one of our greatest resources. While I can see that we are badly hampered on account of the cattle tick, in raising cattle, I have long ago seen that the only way to get our people interested in tick eradication is to have a man to work the county and give practical demonstrations on the eradications, and raising cattle and hogs.

I want a law passed to give each county in the state that has cattle ticks a cattle demonstrator. This demonstrator shall be a citizen of the county in which he works and he shall be forced to not own and keep less than six cows on his premises, and then have a state superintendent who shall look after the county men. Then you can see that the man who has the county superintendency will have to have an assistant to look after his own stock. Then he will have an appetite in his work. By doing this we will soon have the state filled with practical men, and you will then see more and have plenty of meat and beef, and some to sell.

A man that lives in the section of state that you do and ever has been in this section of the state has no idea what we lose here in a single year from tick fever alone. If our farmers are not interested in the matter enough to try to get rid of the ticks. In the first place they don't know how to get started at the work of eradication. Dr. Peter F. Bahnsen, state veterinarian says he is going to take the work of eradication just as soon as he can get to Emanuel county, but we have some idea how long that will be before we get relief, and take the other way we can get rid of the ticks quicker and easier, but the things will come only through the united efforts of the individuals of the state.

I am more interested in the cattle of this section of the state than any other thing of public interest, but I can't get the other people interested. Will be glad to hear from you on this subject any time.

GEO. M. H.
Swainsboro, Ga.

LOTS! LOTS! LOTS! LOTS!

THE WISE purchaser buys where all improvements have been made and the street cars reach the property, then values are assured. If you want to see some beautiful lots, covered with virgin forest, take the Soldiers' Home car at Five Points, and look at the regent lots in Brownwood Park. These lots have large frontages and good depths. They have sewer, water, electric lights, sidewalks and street car line in front of them. As an investment proposition or for building purposes, there is nothing on the south side that can excel them. Go look them over and then talk with us about them.

GRAND VIEW LOTS—Somewhere near North avenue. These lots are high above Ponce de Leon and have a very commanding view. The price is extremely low, considering the location and conveniences. Take a Ponce de Leon avenue car and get off at Bonnevenure. Go out and look these lots over and then confer with us.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Major Ulm is Suggested for Governor Four Years Hence.

Major A. H. Ulm for governor in 1917 is the latest thrown out by Editor Albert C. Sweat in his paper, the Nashville (Ga.) Herald.

Few men in Georgia are better posted on its politics and problems than Major Ulm, who has held the office of executive secretary for four years under Governor Brown and on Monday entered upon a new term in this position with Governor Slaton.

Prior to becoming secretary at the beginning of Governor Brown's first term Major Ulm represented some of the largest Georgia dailies as their political writer.

Editor Sweat, who concedes that Governor Slaton is to fill the executive office for two terms, nominates Major Ulm to be his successor in the following editorial paragraph:

"Four years from now we would like to see Major Hardy Ulm take the governor's chair. He is experienced and popular and would make a fine race."

"Bob" Martin Comes to View Legislature at Close Range.

Robert Martin, for many years the editor of municipal politics for the Savannah Press, and until recently secretary of the Dublin chamber of commerce, is in Atlanta to see the new legislature in action, and to greet old friends among the members.

Mr. Martin, who is now in the insurance business, is spending the summer at Indian Spring. He says he expects the legislature to revise the tax system and bring about substantial and far-reaching reforms in the state's financial system.

Commissioner Price Assumed His New Duties on Monday Afternoon.

Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock J. J. Connor, the retiring commissioner of agriculture, formally turned over the office to J. D. Price, the new commissioner.

The transfer took place over in the offices of the agricultural department at the capitol and the various attaches of the department were present. In a new Ansley hotel. When Mr. Miller reached Atlanta just prior to the convening of the legislature, he heard that there was a new hotel in the city and liked himself immediately.

"Sorry, but we are not open yet," Manager Jack Letton told him, but the junior member of the firm relented.

Mr. Letton told him to come on in as his personal guest until the formal opening Monday evening, when the soiree's name was placed at the head of the register.

Mr. Miller, who is just making his debut in politics, is the son of Judge A. L. Miller, of Macon.

Congressman Walker Protested Negro Belcher's Appointment.

As soon as he read in The Journal Monday afternoon that there was a probability that E. R. Belcher, a negro, might be named deputy collector of customs for the port of Brunswick, Congressman John Randall Walker, of the Twelfth district, in Atlanta with Mrs. Walker, who is very ill, wired protest to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo.

Congressman Walker urged that nothing be done which would permit a negro deputy collector to be imposed upon the people of Brunswick, and he was very much gratified Tuesday when he learned that such a situation had been avoided.

Mrs. Walker will shortly undergo an operation at a private sanitarium in Atlanta, after which Congressman Walker will return to Washington.

Judge Frank H. Saffold May Run For Congress in Twelfth District.

Political gossip has it that there is a strong probability that Judge Frank H. Saffold, of Swainsboro, Emanuel county, may run for congress in the Twelfth district in the fall of 1914, opposing Congressman Dudley M. Hughes.

Judge Saffold was here last week shaking hands with "the boys." He did not make any positive announcement, it is said, but indicated that he was seriously considering entering the race for congress.

Both Judge Saffold and Congressman Hughes are very popular in the Twelfth, and in the event the former goes into the contest there will be some interesting times.

Congressman Edwards May Not Have Any Opposition When He Runs Again.

The Statesboro News is authority for the statement that Congressman Charles Gordon Edwards, of the First district, will be re-elected to succeed himself in the primary of 1914, and that he will not have any opposition. Congressman Edwards has represented the First district since 1906.

Following is the prediction of the Statesboro News:

"Some time ago there were rumors to the effect that we may have a scrap in the congressional race in the First district next year, but from reliable sources close to the prospective candidates, we learn that this little opposition has practically melted away.

"Mr. Edwards has a strong hold on the district, and the time may come when he can be defeated, but we seriously doubt if that time has come yet.

"Politicians are a little slow to 'walk on the grass.' Charlie Edwards has made a good congressman, and the people are willing to trust him again."

Ward Allen, Famous Hunter, Wants State Game Warden's Job.

Ward Allen, of Savannah, known far and wide as one of the south's mightiest nimrods, has come to Atlanta determined, if possible, to get the office of state game and fish commissioner, which is now held by Jesse E. Mercer, of Fitzgerald.

This office is an appointive one and it will soon be up to Governor Slaton either to re-appoint Mr. Mercer or choose a successor for him. It is generally believed that Mr. Mercer will hold his place. However, Mr. Allen has brought with him many strong indorsements from prominent and influential people in Savannah and South Georgia.

A rather unique feature of this contest is that Mr. Mercer has prosecuted Mr. Allen in the Chatham county courts for alleged violations of the game laws.

Mr. Allen advocates a number of radical changes in the game laws. He says they are entirely too stringent and in many respects really foolish.

Representative Wallace Miller Was First Guest of New Ansley Hotel

Wallace Miller, of Macon, a member of the fifth delegation in the house, is the holder of another distinction. He was the first guest to register at the new Ansley hotel. When Mr. Miller reached Atlanta just prior to the convening of the legislature, he heard that there was a new hotel in the city and liked himself immediately.

"Sorry, but we are not open yet," Manager Jack Letton told him, but the junior member of the firm relented.

Mr. Letton told him to come on in as his personal guest until the formal opening Monday evening, when the soiree's name was placed at the head of the register.

Mr. Miller, who is just making his debut in politics, is the son of Judge A. L. Miller, of Macon.

BIG DISCLOSURES IN LOBBY PROBE EXPECTED

Labor Leaders Offer Testimony—To Resume Investigation Wednesday

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Disclosures that promise to follow the reopening of the senate's lobby investigation tomorrow are expected to be among the most important developments of recent years in a congressional inquiry. Since publication of Martin M. Hulhall's story of how he had operated to influence legislation and election in behalf of the National Association of Manufacturers, score of labor leaders, present and former congressmen and other have come forward with testimony and asked that they also be heard by the investigators.

Both John Kirby, Jr., and D. M. Parry are in San Francisco and were expecting to sail for Australia today. They wired Chairman Overman asking to be excused from testifying before the senate committee now, but promised to appear on their return in several months. They wired it would cost them about $3,000 each to change their plans. Chairman Overman today wired the two men directing that they hold themselves in readiness to appear.

Representative Shirley, of Kentucky, mentioned in the Mulhall charges as one the manufacturers could count upon to support certain measures, today secured from Senator Overman permission to appear before the lobby committee tomorrow. Shirley said he would introduce in the house a resolution for an investigation by a special committee.

The work of the lobbyists in Wall street, where names of congressmen have been used over the telephone in connection with demands upon railway and financial officials, will be the hearing's subject.

John Kirby, Jr., Willing to Appear Before Committee

(By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—John Kirby, Jr., former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, who is here en route to the Antipodes, is willing to appear before the senatorial committee investigating activity of the lobby as described by Martin M. Hulhall, but he has asked the committee to postpone his appearance for several months.

THEATERS

The usual high class bill of vaudeville is presented a t the Forsyth theater this week. The sketches include a large variety and are of the rattling good kind that everybody likes to see and see again.

Aerial acrobats close the bill and are really the leading attraction. They are two women with a little girl who is the Eva Tanquay of the air. She cares not where she throws herself from a trapeze nor what daring risks she takes.

Billy McDermott, the hobo comedian; Edward Sedley and Miss Charlotte Lander, Violinsky, a doc pantomime act, and the "Klever Kids" are other numbers which please.

The production of the Thomas A. Edison talking pictures at the Grand Monday night presented to the audience an unique form of amusement. The talking pictures are formed by the combination of the regular motion picture machine and a phonograph placed in action behind the screen.

Apparently the inventor of the talking pictures has produced a combination almost wholly mechanically perfect. The sounds correspond to the movements of the pictures very accurately.

The bill at the Grand this week is just long enough to show the novelty of Mr. Edison's invention and not too long enough to become tiresome. At intervals regular moving pictures are shown. The talking pictures will be at the Grand during the remainder of the week.

KIRBY AND PARRY WILL TESTIFY IN LOBBY PROBE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—Half an hour before the liner Ventura was due to sail today for the Antipodes, John Kirby, Jr., and David M. Parry, former presidents of the National Associated Manufacturers, cancelled their reservations and engaged transportation for Washington, where they will appear before the senate investigating activities of lobbyists. Their change of plans will cost about $3,000.

GROCERY STORES CLOSE WEDNESDAY, NOT FRIDAY

The Retail Grocers' association announces that all stores will close on Wednesday afternoon in honor of the Fourth of July, and will be open all day Friday as usual. This is to facilitate the closing of the stores two days in the same week, as they had all agreed to close on Wednesday, and could not afford the loss of another day.

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE

STOCKS MAY DROP BUT
Atlanta Real Estate
CONTINUES TO G-R-O-W

HAVE YOU WATCHED the stock market and noted the wide differences between the prices of one year ago and those of today? Look at the figures and think what the decrease in the value of these stocks—every one of them a high-class dividend payer—means:

	Price June 28, 1912	Price June 28, 1913
Union Pacific	170	149
Lehigh Valley	172	147
Illinois Central	128	110
American Sugar Refinery	130	107
U. S. Steel	71	53
New York Central	117	97

We might extend the list indefinitely, but these tell the story. A similar story might be told of the stocks traded in upon the Atlanta market. Where, outside of a few bank stocks which have held their own on account of an increased surplus, is there a single local stock that has not weakened in value?

Ever hear of a slump in Atlanta real estate? No, and you never will, it matters not what the condition of the money market.

On the other hand, Atlanta real estate has grown in value even during times of stringency, and

Keeping the Body in Repair

Nature intended that the body should do its own repairing—and it would do so were it not for the fact that most of us live other than a natural life.

Nature didn't intend that we should wear corsets, tight collars or shoes, nor live in badly ventilated and draughty houses, nor eat and drink some of the things that we do, nor ride in street cars when we should walk.

The consequence is that the body when it gets out of order must look for outside help to make the necessary repairs.

For weak stomachs and the indigestion ordyspepsia resulting, and the multitude of diseases following therefrom, no medicine can be more adaptable as a curative agent than DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

I had displacement, backache and pains when standing on my feet for any length of time, when I began to take the medicine, but I am in fine health now. If I ever have those troubles again I will take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. ED. PEERON, 816 High St., Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin.

Providence, R. I.—"I cannot speak too highly of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it has done wonders for me and I would not be without it. I had organic displacement and bearing down pains and backache and was thoroughly run down when I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me and I am in the best of health at present. I work in a factory all day long besides doing my housework so you can see what it has done for me. I give you permission to publish my name and I speak of your Vegetable Compound to many of my friends."—Mrs. ABBIE LAWSON, 126 Lippitt St., Providence, R. I.
